procesos y las entidades que se encuentran en el interior de lo nacional son nacionales cada vez resulta más necesaria la investigación empírica para determinar si todos ellos lo son pues cada vez existen más casos de localización de lo global y de desnacionalización de lo nacional. Vista de esta manera la globalización no se limita ya a la noción convencional que la define como un proceso de formación de instituciones exclusivamente globales y de interdependencia creciente entre los estados nacionales del mundo. En efecto si lo global reside en parte en el interior de lo nacional resulta evidente que la globalización no es en sus distintas modalidades compromete de manera directa dos supuestos. El primero de ellos es la concepción implícita o explícita del Estado nacional como contenedor de los procesos sociales. El segundo es la correspondencia implícita entre el territorio nacional y lo nacional como característica es decir la idea de que si un fenómeno se da en una institución o en un territorio nacional entonces debe ser de carácter nacional. En el marco de ese horizonte de reflexión esta obra de Saskia Sassen aborda el análisis de dos dinámicas diferenciadas. Por un lado la formación de procesos e instituciones explícitamente globales. Por otro lado los procesos que no pertenecen necesariamente a la escala global y que sin embargo forman parte de la globalización porque aun inmersos en territorios y dominios institucionales que en gran parte del mundo se consideran nacionales incorporan redes o entidades transfronterizas que conectan múltiples procesos y actores locales o nacionales.
