Abstract Lung cancer is a major global health problem. Several strategies are required to conquer this cancer. Stricter implementations of tobacco control measures are necessary. Early detection programs should be implemented to decrease lung cancer mortality. Although chemotherapy remains a cornerstone of treatment, targeted therapies and immune checkpoint inhibitors improved treatment of metastatic cancers and are hoped to improve outcome of adjuvant and induction therapies. Novel immunotherapy approaches hold great promise. Better understanding of the molecular biology of lung cancer should lead to rational drug design.

Introduction

Lung cancer is a global health problem. Approximately 2.1 million individuals are diagnosed with lung cancer and 1.8 million die from this cancer each year.¹ Lung cancer rates continue to increase on the global level, although the rates are declining among males in some Western countries. Non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC) makes up about 85% and small cell lung cancer (SCLC) about 15% of lung cancers. Pathological diagnosis is based on histology, immune histology and molecular analysis.² Lung cancers are currently staged according to the eighth edition of the TNM Classification for Lung Cancer.^{3,4} Tumor stage is important for prognosis and treatment.^{3,4} Overall, the five year survival rates are 15–20%. Among patients with NSCLC, these rates reach 90% for stage 1A but drop below 10% for stage 4. Among patients with SCLC, the rates are about 30% for limited disease and below 10% for extensive disease.

Treatment of patients with lung cancer requires multidisciplinary co-operation and is based on surgery, radiotherapy, systemic treatments (chemotherapy, targeted therapies, immune checkpoint inhibitors) and supportive care including end-of-life care. Treatment depends on tumor characteristics, tumor stage and patient-related factors. Finally, access to and re-imbursment of novel drugs are becoming an increasing challenge for many countries.

Major diagnostic and therapeutic advances have occurred during the last three decades. Here, the current status of systemic treatment and strategies for conquering lung cancer are described.

Cellular Immune Mechanisms and Tumor Dormancy features the work of internationally recognized experts from various disciplines as they discuss the phenomenon of tumor dormancy in humans Animal models are described in which cellular and molecular components of the immune control of dormancy have been identified and the relevance of these models to human cancer patients is recognized

Data derived from studies of organ transplantation adjuvant chemotherapy radiotherapy anaesthesia surgery and whole blood transfusion is presented to show the vulnerability of cellular mechanisms maintaining dormancy The potential for increasing the incidence of dormancy in micro metastases is also shown for non small cell lung cancer lymphoma and leukemia

Cellular Immune Mechanisms and Tumor Dormancy is an important reference volume that will benefit researchers from many disciplines including immunologists pathologists surgeons and clinicians

Outcome Prediction in Cancer Azzam F.G. Taktak, Anthony C. Fisher, 2006-11-28

This book is organized into 4 sections each looking at the question of outcome prediction in cancer from a different angle The first section describes the clinical problem and some of the predicaments that clinicians face in dealing with cancer Amongst issues discussed in this section are the TNM staging accepted methods for survival analysis and competing risks The second section describes the biological and genetic markers and the role of bioinformatics Understanding of the genetic and environmental basis of cancers will help in identifying high risk populations and developing effective prevention and early detection strategies The third section provides technical details of mathematical analysis behind survival prediction backed up by examples from various types of cancers The fourth section describes a number of machine learning methods which have been applied to decision support in cancer The final section describes how information is shared within the scientific and medical communities and with the general population using information technology and the World Wide Web Applications cover 8 types of cancer including brain eye mouth head and neck breast lungs colon and prostate Include contributions from authors in 5 different disciplines Provides a valuable educational tool for medical informatics Recent Advances in Theories and Practice of Chinese Medicine Haixue Kuang,2012-01-18 During the recent years traditional Chinese medicine TCM has attracted the attention of researchers all over the world It is looked upon not only as a bright pearl but also a treasure house of ancient Chinese culture Nowadays TCM has become a subject area with high potential and the possibility for original innovation This book titled Recent Advances in Theories and Practice of Chinese Medicine provides an authoritative and cutting edge insight into TCM research including its basic theories diagnostic approach current clinical applications latest advances and more It discusses many often neglected important issues such as the theory of TCM property and how to carry out TCM research in the direction of TCM property theory using modern scientific technology The authors of this book comprise an international group of recognized researchers who possess abundant clinical knowledge and research background due to their years of practicing TCM Hopefully this book will help our readers gain a deeper understanding of the unique characteristics of Chinese medicine
