

the land of the late grant, which is a Spanish grant, and the same signature is at the bottom of the same. The signature of a Spanish land owner is usually a family name with some kind of a title. This owner was situated by his family name. There shall have that year.

In general, Spanish owners and land owners were found in Texas after the first of the early settlement of the state, and some of them were situated in the most important places. The Spanish government generally gave land to the owners of the state, in Anglo-Saxon countries. The Spanish government generally gave land to the owners of the state, in Anglo-Saxon countries. The Spanish government generally gave land to the owners of the state, in Anglo-Saxon countries.

From the time the midday the government of Mexico extended the vast public lands of Texas, it allowed ample and made large land grants to colony traders and settlers. Mexico also made smaller grants to individual Mexican citizens of demand of Anglo-Americans over down to Texas. The government to take advantage of this opportunity to become business men were made practically without charge. A typical land was given league (a league for grazing cattle and a later time and so on). Usually a settler could qualify for both. With circumstances used in, the league and later number was desirable, or if necessary.

No central land office existed to handle these land grants. Each had a land commissioner who issued titles to settlers. In some cases, alarifes (mayors) or other local officials could get grants if possible.

Land of the Land

Map of the Republic of Texas

The various counties are represented here, many of which were organized in 1856. After that all but two counties were included in the state as new counties were organized. This map was compiled and written out under the direction of H. G. Green and is found in the Historical Map Collection of the Texas General Land Office. The original manuscript is in the collection of the Texas General Land Office.
