Richardson, 2012-12-06 This book originated in a symposium that was held at the London Conference of the British Psychological Society BPS in December 1988 The fact that the various contributors were able to assemble at all was very much due to the kind generosity of the Scientific Affairs Board of the BPS which had made resources available from its Initiatives Fund to enable Barbara Sommer to travel to the United Kingdom to participate in the event The broad continuity among the contributions to this symposium in terms of their underlying themes led us to the view that a single volume consisting of original papers by those concerned would be a timely contribution to the research literature not simply on menstruation and cognitive performance but more generally on the nature of female psychology This was confirmed by a clear sense that in their different ways the individual researchers involved were achieving genuine conceptual theoretical and empirical progress in this area and were generating ideas and findings that accorded well with changing views of women in psychology and cognate disciplines We hope that the various chapters in this book convey some sense of this intellectual progress and development JOHN T E RICHARDSON v Contents Preface v Contributors xi Chapter 1 The Menstrual Cycle Cognition and Paramenstrual Symptomatology JOHN T E Evening Primrose Oil Judy Graham, 1989-03 Here is the story of the remarkable evening primrose and the uses to which the oil from its seeds can be put one of the major ones being in the treatment of premenstrual tension Unlike most natural products which are on the whole useful for one condition only the oil of the evening primrose has properties which make it useful for a wide range of conditions among them MS arthritis vascular problems and PMS Managing the Monstrous Feminine Jane M.
