Women, America, and Movement Susan L. Roberson, 1998 Since the colonial days American women have traveled migrated and relocated always faced with the challenge of reconstructing their homes for themselves and their families Women America and Movement offers a journey through largely unexplored territory the experiences of migrating American women These narratives both real and imagined represent a range of personal and critical perspectives some of the women describe their travels as expansive and freeing while others relate the dreadful costs and sacrifices of relocating Despite the range of essays featured in this study the writings all coalesce around the issues of politics poetry and self identity described by Adrienne Rich as the elements of the politics of location treated here as the politics of relocation The narratives featured in this book explore the impact of race class and sexual economics on migratory women their self identity and their roles in family and social life These issues demonstrate that in addition to geographic place ideology is itself a space to be traversed By examining the writings of such women as Louise Erdrich Zora Neale Hurston and Gertrude Stein the essayists included in this volume offer a variety of experiences The book confronts such issues as racist politicking against Native Americans African Americans and Asian immigrants sexist attitudes that limit women to the roles of wife mother and sexual object and exploitation of migrants from Appalachia and of women newly arrived in America These essays also delve into the writings themselves by looking at what happens to narrative structure as authors or their characters cross geographic boundaries The reader sees how women writers negotiate relocation in their texts and how the written word becomes a place where one finds oneself

Margins and Mainstreams Gary Y. Okihiro, 2014-04-01 In this classic book on the meaning of multiculturalism in larger American society Gary Okihiro explores the significance of Asian American experiences from the perspectives of historical consciousness race gender class and culture While exploring anew the meanings of Asian American social history Okihiro argues that the core values and ideals of the nation emanate today not from the so called mainstream but from the margins from among Asian and African Americans Latinos and American Indians women and the gay and lesbian community Those groups in their struggles for equality have helped to preserve and advance the founders ideals and have made America a more democratic place for all

Korean and Korean American Life Writing in Hawai'i

Heui-Yung Park, 2015-12-16

Korean and Korean American Life Writing in Hawai'i examines such self-representing genres as lyric poems, oral history, autobiography, and memoirs written by Korean and Korean Americans from the early twentieth century to the present in order to explore how these people have shaped their individual or collective identities. Their representations produced in different periods by successive generations reveal how Koreans in their diaspora to Hawai'i came to terms with their ethnic and local selves and also how the sense of who and what they are changed over the years, both within and beyond the initial generation. Looking into their individual and collective identities in lyric poems, oral history, autobiography, and memoirs reveals how the earliest arrivals, their children, and their grandchildren have come to terms with their national, ethnic, and local selves and how their sense of identity changes over the course of time, both within and beyond the initial generation. In the lyric poems found in Korean language periodicals of the native-born generation, we can trace the significance of the motherland and Hawai'i for these writers' sense of identity. The oral histories of first-generation women, most of whom arrived as picture brides, also represent another set of often vulnerable Koreans who define themselves in relation to both the present culture and to Korean men. The self developed by the second, third, and in-between generation Koreans diversifies because their identity is not defined exclusively by their ancestral land extending to Hawai'i and to America. This study focuses on three main areas of emphasis: Hawai'i, Korean language and culture, and life writing. By tracing how identity changes with each generation, this study reveals how identity formation for Hawai'i diasporic Koreans has evolved.
