States and Women's Rights Mounira Charrad,2001 At a time when the situation of women in the Islamic world is of global interest here is a study that unlocks the mystery of why women s fates vary so greatly from one country to another Mounira M Charrad analyzes the distinctive nature of Islamic legal codes by placing them in the larger context of state power in various societies Charrad argues that many analysts miss what is going on in Islamic societies because they fail to recognize the logic of the kin based model of social and political life which she contrasts with the Western class centered model In a skillful synthesis she shows how the logic of Islamic legal codes and kin based political power affect the position of women These provide the key to Charrad s empirical puzzle why after colonial rule women in Tunisia gained broad legal rights even in the absence of a feminist protest movement while despite similarities in culture and religion women remained subordinated in post independence Morocco and Algeria Charrad s elegant theory crisp writing and solid scholarship make a unique contribution in developing a state building paradigm to discuss women s rights This book will interest readers in the fields of sociology politics law women s studies postcolonial studies Middle Eastern studies Middle Eastern history French history and Maghrib studies

Gender and the Digital Economy Cecilia Ng,Swasti Mitter,2005-11-05 In the global discourse on ICTs the concern so far has primarily been outsourcing and the loss of service sector jobs from the developed world This book focuses instead on the positive aspects of the digital economy as they relate to women in the developing world It illustrates with case studies from Argentina Morocco India Malaysia and the Philippines how economic empowerment through the medium of ICTs can change the position of women within their families and the workplace even in the face of uneven development processes This timely volume which is rooted in primary and original research illuminates the gender related facets of the emergent information society while raising key questions about the implications of the digital economy on women s work and lives

Islamic and European Expansion Michael Adas, 1993-07-20 This volume of essays makes available the essential background information and methods for effective teaching and writing on cross cultural history The contributors some of the most distinguished writers of global and comparative history chart the advances in understanding in their fields of concentration revealing both specific findings and broad patterns that have emerged The cover image The Arrival of the Dutch at Patane from Theodore de Bry India Orientals Part VIII Frankfurt W Richteri 1607 depicts the two key phases of global history that are covered by the essays Muslim inhabitants of the town of Patane on the Malayan peninsula warily confront a Dutch landing party whose bearing suggests that it is engaged in yet another episode in the saga of European overseas exploration and discovery The presence of the Muslims in Malaya reflects an earlier process of expansion that saw Islamic civilization spread from Spain and Morocco in the west to the Philippines in the east in the millennium between the 7th and 17th centuries The Dutch came by sea to an area on the coastal and island fringes of Asia the one zone where their warships gave them a decisive edge in this era The citizens of Patane had good reason to distrust the European intruders since the Portuguese who had preceded the Dutch had used force whenever possible to control the formerly peaceful trade in the region and often to persecute Muslim Peoples Author note Michael Adas is Abraham Voorhees Professor of History at Rutgers University New Brunswick He is currently editor of the American Historical Association's series on Global and Comparative History and co editor of the Cambridge University Press series on Studies in Comparative World History He has published numerous articles and books including most recently with Peter Stearns and Stuart Schwartz World Civilization The Global Experience 1992 and Turbulent Passage A Global History of the Twentieth Century 1993

The Different Faces of Motherhood Beverly Birns, Dale Hay, 2013-06-29 The Different Faces of Motherhood began during a conversation between the two editors developmental psychologists who have spent our professional careers working with infants and very young children We are well aware of the importance of infants to their mothers and of mothers to their infants However we were particularly aware of the fact that whereas our knowledge about infants increases exponentially each decade our assumptions about mothers change relatively little We were concerned about the theories that underlie the advice given to mothers and also about the assumption that mothers appear to be generic More and more we have learned about individual differences in babies but not more and more about individual differences in mothers Our second concern has been to expand our knowledge about mothers Our assumptions were few and our questions were many We believed that the experience of women would vary greatly both in outlook and in behavior depending on each woman's age marital status financial status ethnicity health education and work experience as well as a woman's own experience in her family origin and her relationship to her husband If we are to understand child development and believe that the early years are important in a child's life then it seems critical to examine our beliefs about mothers If we are to understand human development then being a mother is surely an important area of inquiry
