The Naval War in the Mediterranean Paul G. Halpern, 2015-10-05 This volume originally published in 1987 fills a gap in a neglected area Looking at the entire war in the Mediterranean the volume examines the war from the viewpoint of all the important participants making full use of archives and manuscript collections in Britain France Italy Germany Austria and the United States A fascinating mosaic of campaigns emerges in the Adriatic Straits of Otranto and the Eastern Aegean The German assistance to the tribes of Libya the threat that Germany would get her hands on the Russian Black Sea Fleet and use it in the Mediterranean and the appearance and influence of the Americans in 1918 all took place against a background of rivalry between the Allies which frustrated the appointment of Jellicoe in 1918 as supreme command at sea in a role similar to that of Foch on land

Policy and Operations in the Mediterranean, 1912-14 Esmond Walter Rawson Lumby, 1970 The documents in this focus on the Mediterranean in the years 1912 to 1914 are grouped in four sections each with an informative Introduction The first covers the debate on British policy in the Mediterranean which occurred soon after Winston Churchill became First Lord of the Admiralty as well as the conversations between Britain and France in the years before the start of the Great War at both naval and diplomatic levels The second section records the movement of the German battle cruiser Goeben and the light cruiser Breslau in the days between July 27 and August 14 1914 The escape of the Goeben and Breslau from the British Mediterranean fleet after the declaration of war was the grounds for a Court of Enquiry and the Court Martial of Rear Admiral E C T Troubridge which are reported in the third section And the fourth part deals with British naval activity with particular reference to Turkey and Turkish waters after these two German ships succeeded in reaching the Dardanelles

The Royal Navy in the Mediterranean, 1915-1918 Paul G. Halpern, 1987 This volume needs to be read in conjunction with NRS Volume 115 Policy and Operations in the Mediterranean 1912 1914 The Mediterranean was a secondary theatre for the Royal Navy and the ships tended to be ageing and retired from fleet duty France assumed the major responsibility along with Italy but the Royal Navy retained a strong presence and performed vital functions Most operations have attracted less attention than Jutland the Falklands or the Battle of the Atlantic but Gibraltar and Malta remained important bases the Suez Canal had to be defended there was a mine barrage in the Otranto Straits and the Navy supported the Army at the Dardanelles Salonika and in the Middle East while there was latterly much convoy work The sources include the main war history collection of Admiralty papers The National Archive PRO ADM 137 and the private papers of senior commanders such as Howard Kelly Limpus and de Robeck

British Naval Intelligence through the Twentieth Century Andrew Boyd, 2020-08-30 An acclaimed military historian examines the vital role of British naval intelligence from the mid nineteenth century to the end of the Cold War In this comprehensive account Andrew Boyd brings a critical new dimension to our understanding of British naval intelligence From the capture of Napoleons signal codes to the satellite based systems of the Cold War era he provides a coherent and reliable overview while setting his subject in the larger context of the British state It is a fascinating study of how naval needs and personalities shaped the British intelligence community that exists today Boyd explains why and how intelligence was collected and assesses its real impact on policy and operations Though he confirms that naval intelligence was critical to Britains victory in both World Wars he significantly reappraises its role in each He reveals that coverage of Germany before 1914 and of the three Axis powers in the interwar period was more comprehensive and effective than previously suggested and while British power declined rapidly after 1945 the book shows how intelligence helped the Royal Navy to remain a significant global force for the rest of the twentieth century

Crisis in the Mediterranean Jon K Hendrickson, 2014-04-15 Prior to July 1914 the extensive British grip on the Mediterranean Sea was beginning to weaken leading to a wide open competition between Austria Hungary Italy France and Great Britain This change Jon Hendrickson contends was driven by three largely understudied events the weakening of the British Mediterranean Fleet to provide more ships for the North Sea Austria Hungary s decision to build a navy capable of operating in the Mediterranean and Italy s decision to seek naval security in the Triple Alliance after the Italo Turkish War These three factors radically altered the Mediterranean balance of power forcing Britain and France to come to a mutual accommodation and accelerate ship construction to defend their respective interests in the region However the July Crisis and the ensuing World War obscured these events leading later historians to ignore these events
