Political Participation Lester W. Milbrath, Madan Lal Goel, 1977 Political Participation Lester W. Milbrath, 1969

Political Participation in Beijing Tianjian Shi, 1997 In this first scientific survey of political participation in the People's Republic of China Tianjian Shi identifies twenty eight participatory acts and groups them into seven areas voting campaign activities appeals adversarial activities cronyism resistance and boycotts What he finds will surprise many observers Political participation in a closed society is not necessarily characterized by passive citizens driven by regime mobilization aimed at carrying out predetermined goals Beijing citizens acknowledge that they actively engage in various voluntary participatory acts to articulate their interests In a society where communication channels are controlled by the government Shi discovers access to information from unofficial means becomes the single most important determinant for people's engaging in participatory acts Government sponsored channels of appeal are easily accessible to ordinary citizens so socioeconomic resources are unimportant in determining who uses these channels Instead voter turnout is found to be associated with the type of work unit a person belongs to subjective evaluations of one's own economic status and party affiliation Those most likely to engage in campaign activities adversarial activities cronyism resistance and boycotts are the more disadvantaged groups in Beijing While political participation in the West fosters a sense of identification the unconventional modes of participation in Beijing undermine the existing political order Internet Use and Political Participation Fanbin
