China's Information and Communications Technology Revolution Xiaoling Zhang, Yongnian Zheng, 2009-03-20 This book examines China's information and communications technology revolution. It outlines key trends in internet and telecommunications exploring the social, cultural and political implications of China's transition to a more information and communications rich society. It shows that despite remaining a one party state with extensive censorship substantial changes have occurred. A New New English Anja Kellermann, 2001 Gibraltar is a mere 2.5 square miles of British rock at the southern tip of the Iberian peninsula. Yet this microcosm is home to 20,000 Gibraltarians. In the wake of age-old geopolitical, social and cultural tensions a unique language contact situation has emerged. Since the arrival of the British in 1704 Spanish and English have coexisted in the colony. English as the language of the colonial masters and Spanish Yanito as that of the local people. Over the last 60 years however this diglossic situation has gradually changed with the Gibraltarians adopting English as their mother tongue. The result has been the institutionalisation of the language and the emergence of a new New English. This empirical study conducts an instrumental analysis of this localised form of English revealing its nativisation process. The analysis pinpoints the distinctive features of Gibraltarian English and posits that a focussing process is in progress. Implementing a qualitative quantitative analysis of sociolinguistic data the author also explores the mechanisms behind the speech community's language usage attitudes and ideology. Over time Gibraltarians changing conceptions about English and Spanish have reflected their perceived identity of themselves as British and or Gibraltarians. This book reveals Gibraltar as speech community in search of an identity. It is a people aware of its multicultural heritage determined in its continued rejection of Spanish claims on sovereignty and increasingly ambivalent toward its colonial past. Foreign Policy Implications of Satellite Communications United States. Congress. House. Committee on Foreign Affairs. Subcommittee on National Security Policy and Scientific Developments, 1970 The Handbook of Spanish Language Media Alan Albarran, 2009-09-10 With the rise of Spanish language media around the world no reference work is available that provides an overview of the field or its emerging issues. The goal is to establish a Handbook that will become the definitive source for scholars interested in this emerging field of study not only to provide background knowledge of the various issues and topics relevant to Spanish Language media but also to establish directions for future research in this rapidly growing area. Convention relating to the distribution of programme-carrying signals transmitted by satellite World Intellectual Property Organization, The International Conference of States on the Distribution of Programme Carrying Signals Transmitted by Satellite convened jointly by the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization and the World Intellectual Property Organization was held
