Charles Kingsley, 1890 Sermons on National Subjects (Volume 2 of 3) (EasyRead Super Large 24pt Edition) Charles Kingsley, 1890 Sermons on National Subjects Charles Kingsley, 1852 Sermons on National Subjects Charles Kingsley, 2014-03-08 Sermons on National Subjects The Love of Christ By Charles Kingsley These may seem strange words but almost every one is saying them in his own way One large party among religious people in these days is complaining that Christ has left His Church and that the cause of Christianity will be ruined and lost unless some great change takes place Another large party of religious people say that the prophecies are on the point of being all fulfilled that the 1260 days spoken of by the prophet Daniel are just coining to an end and that Christ is coming with His saints to reign openly upon earth for a thousand years The wisest philosophers and historians of late years have been all foretelling a great and tremendous change in England and throughout all Europe and in the meantime manufacturers and landlords tradesmen and farmers artisans and labourers all say that there must be a change and will be a change I believe they are all right every one of them They put it in their words I think it better to put it in the Scripture words and say boldly Jesus Christ the King of the earth is coming But you will ask What right have you to stand up and say anything so surprising My friends the world is full of surprising things and this age above all ages It was not sixty years ago that a nobleman was laughed at in the House of Lords for saying that he believed that we should one day see ships go by steam and now there are steamers on every sea and ocean in the world Who expected twenty years ago to see the whole face of England covered with these wonderful railroads Who expected on the 22nd of February last year that within a single month half the nations of Europe which looked so quiet and secure would be shaken from top to bottom with revolution and bloodshed kings and princes vanishing one after the other like a dream poor men sitting for a day as rulers of kingdoms and then hurled down again to make room for other rulers as unexpected as themselves Can anyone consider the last fifty years can anyone consider that one last year 1848 and then not feel that we do live in a most strange and awful time a time for which nothing is too surprising a time in which we all ought to be prepared from the least to the greatest to see the greatest horrors and the greatest blessings come suddenly upon us like a thief in the night So much for Christ s coming being too wonderful a thing to happen just now Still you are right to ask What do you mean by Christ s being our King what do you mean by His coming to us What reason have you for supposing that He is coming now rather than at any other time And if He be coming what are we to do What is there we ought to repent of what is there we ought to amend Christian Life Spiritual Growth Christian Education Christian Sermons Bible Study

Sermons on National Subjects Charles Kingsley, 2019-12-06 In Sermons on National Subjects Charles Kingsley offers a profound exploration of moral and ethical themes through a collection of sermons that address the pressing social issues of his time Written in a compelling and accessible style Kingsley adeptly blends theological insights with a pragmatic approach to national welfare and community responsibility His sermons navigate topics such as poverty education and social justice reflecting the Victorian era s anxieties and aspirations Kingsley s rhetoric is passionate yet reasoned inviting readers to engage with the moral imperatives that underpin societal progress Charles Kingsley 1819 1875 was a multifaceted figure an Anglican clergyman social reformer historian and novelist His deep commitment to the improvement of society and concern for the working classes fueled his desire to articulate a robust Christian moral framework that could address the challenges of modernity Inspired by his own experiences with industrialization and social disparity Kingsley s sermons reveal his belief that faith must be actively lived out through acts of service and justice Sermons on National Subjects is essential for readers interested in the intersection of faith and social reform Kingsley s insights remain relevant urging contemporary readers to consider their roles in fostering community well being This compelling work not only illuminates the historical context of Victorian social thought but also challenges us to reflect on our responsibilities towards our nation and fellow citizens

Sermons on National Subjects - Charles Kingsley Charles Kingsley, 2009-12-08 A passage from the book This Sunday is the first of the four Sundays in Advent During those four Sundays our forefathers have advised us to think seriously of the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ not that we should neglect to think of it at all times As some of you know I have preached to you about it often lately Perhaps before the end of Advent you will all of you more or less understand what all that I have said about the cholera and public distress and the sins of this nation and the sins of the labouring people has to do with the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ But I intend especially in my next four sermons to speak my whole mind to you about this matter as far as God has shown it to me taking the Collect Epistle and Gospels for each Sunday in Advent and explaining them I am sure I cannot do better for the more I see of those Collects Epistles and Gospels and the way in which they are arranged the more I am astonished and delighted at the wisdom with which they are chosen the wise order in which they follow each other and fit into each other It is very fit too that we should think of our Lord s coming at this season of the year above all others because it is the hardest season the season of most want and misery and discontent when wages are low and work is scarce and fuel is dear and frosts are bitter and farmers and tradesmen and gentlemen too are at their wits end to square their accounts and pay their way Then is the time that the evils of society come home to us that our sins and our sorrows which after all are the punishment of our sins stare us in the face
