Black Students Gordon L. Berry,Joy Keiko Asamen,1989-11 Why are so many Black students prematurely leaving school What factors can be attributed toward academic achievement of Black students Should teachers be less concerned with curriculum content and more sensitive to the social and psychological needs during child development The authors argue that academic achievement for Black students is influenced not only by circumstances found in the individual or family and school settings but by a whole host of factors Social and economic environments the development of the self concept peer pressure personal attributes such as resources skills and motivation these are a few of the many factors contributing towards a person s ability to achieve academically Black Students brings together current research to address these factors from a variety of perspectives and covers the full educational cycle from kindergarten through the college years The majority of past research on academic achievement of Black students has placed blame on the individual or credited failure toward an incapability to succeed Berry and Asamen's mission is to shift away from this narrow perspective and to look more holistically at the issues. In addition, the book provides some specific programmatic directions for enhancing the academic experiences of Black students. The editors conceptualized and produced an important informative issue-oriented book with contributions by prestigious involved scholars in education, the social sciences, and mental health. Recommendations for policy and programmatic changes are included along with directions for future research. Choice All in all, this book was well conceived and succeeds in its high ideals of offering a useful womanlike contribution to the riddle of the causes of underachievement of Black Americans and ultimately of all Black people of the diaspora intuitively understood by all who know anything of the history of their experience but yet to be coherently deciphered. Education Today Informative and thought provoking. Berry and Asamen make the reader painfully aware of the many casualties and losses of Black youth, particularly low-income Black youth within today's educational system. It explores the societal factors that inhibit or can enhance the academic achievement of low-income Black students. Black Students affirmed some of my own beliefs and provided new information. Moreover, it is difficult to take exception to Berry's conclusion that Blacks need an educational system which offers equity and excellence. British Educational Research Journal

Recent Developments in Alcoholism Marc Galanter, 2006-01-02 From the President of the Research Society on Alcoholism On behalf of the Research Society on Alcoholism I am pleased to introduce this thirteenth volume of Recent Developments in Alcoholism about alcohol and violence. Current concepts are presented in well-organized sections that focus on epidemiology, neurobiology, psychology, and family issues. It is becoming increasingly clear that age, gender, socioeconomic circumstances, and genetics affect aggressive behavior and vulnerability to alcoholism. This volume contains up-to-date discussions of these issues. Indeed, the information presented here will help all alcohol researchers to identify biological and social factors that contribute to the comorbidity of alcoholism and aggression. The editors and associate editors should be congratulated for bringing together such important information. This volume will be a valuable resource for investigators and therapists alike. Ivan Diamond, M.D., Ph.D., President, Research Society on Alcoholism. From the President of the American Society of Addiction Medicine The American Society of Addiction Medicine is honored to continue its sponsorship with the Research Society on Alcoholism of Recent Developments in Alcoholism. The topic of alcohol and violence is a particularly timely one given the growing number of studies that are examining the relationship between the two. These studies are consistent with the hypothesis that alcohol can increase aggression and contribute to both domestic and criminal violence Intoxicating blood levels of alcohol have been found to be especially prevalent in those injured in fights and assaults      Cultivation Analysis Nancy Signorielli, Michael Morgan, 1990

Cultivation analysis is an active ongoing and influential research tradition designed to assess the contributions of television viewing to people's conceptions of social reality It attempts to determine the extent to which people who watch greater amounts of television hold different conceptions of social reality from those who watch less It is concerned with cumulative correlates and consequences of television exposure rather than short term responses to or individual interpretations of television contents It focuses on the implications of accumulated exposure to television's most general insidious and inescapable images and values This unique volume brings together some of the most recent developments in the conceptual methodology
