These 250 transcribed and annotated letters reveal the personal and literary life of one of the most highly regarded African American writers and intellectuals. Paul Laurence Dunbar (1873-1906) was arguably the most famous African American poet, novelist, and dramatist at the turn of the twentieth century and one of the earliest African American writers to receive national recognition and appreciation. Scholars have taken a renewed interest in Dunbar, but much is still unknown about this once famous African American author's life and literary efforts. Dunbar's letters to various editors, friends, benefactors, scholars, and family members are crucial to any critical or theoretical understanding of his journey as a writer. His literary correspondence in particular records the development of an extraordinary figure whose work reached a broad readership in his lifetime but not without considerable cost. The Selected Literary Letters of Paul Laurence Dunbar is a collection of 250 letters transcribed and annotated that reveal the personal and literary life of one of the most highly regarded African American writers and intellectuals. Editors Cynthia C. Murillo and Jennifer M. Nader highlight Dunbar not just as a determined author and master of rhetoric but also as a young, sensitive, thoughtful, keenly intelligent, and talented writer who battled depression, alcoholism, and tuberculosis as well as rejection and racism. Despite Dunbar's personal struggles, his literary letters disclose that he was full of hopes and dreams coupled with the resolve to flourish as a writer at almost any cost, even when it caused controversy. Taken together, Dunbar's letters depict his concerted effort to succeed as an author within an overtly racist literary culture, among sharp divides within the African American intellectual community, and in opposition to the demands of popular public tastes often dictated by the demands of publishers. This wide-ranging selection of Dunbar's most relevant literary letters will serve to correct many matters of conjecture about Dunbar's life, writing, and choices by supplying factual evidence to counter speculation, assumption, and incomplete information. Master Players in a Fixed Game Ralph D. Story, 2001-04. The literary expression of Afro-Americans has been scrutinized and criticized in exhaustive detail yet historically perceived by many American and English literary scholars as qualitatively and quantitatively underdeveloped. This was the view held by many literary scholars until the late 1960s when Afro-American literary scholars and black students argued forcefully and convincingly in favor of the plays, short stories, poetry, and novels written by Afro-Americans. Despite such noteworthy efforts, however, few scholars have investigated the uneven and sporadic appearance of publications or the absence of publications by black writers in any comprehensive fashion Thus the dissertation examines the various extra literary problems faced by Afro American writers which have contributed to either many or few of their works emerging in print in any era Shirley Graham Du Bois Annette K. Werlock, 2015-04-22 Praise for the print edition no other reference work on American fiction brings together such an array of authors and texts as this Black Folklore and the Politics of Racial Representation Shirley Moody-Turner, 2013-10-02 Before the innovative work of Zora Neale Hurston folklorists from the Hampton Institute collected studied and wrote about

African American folklore Like Hurston these folklorists worked within but also beyond the bounds of white mainstream institutions They often called into question the meaning of the very folklore projects in which they were engaged Shirley Moody Turner analyzes this output along with the contributions of a disparate group of African American authors and scholars She explores how black authors and folklorists were active participants rather than passive observers in conversations about the politics of representing black folklore Examining literary texts folklore documents cultural performances legal discourse and political rhetoric Black Folklore and the Politics of Racial Representation demonstrates how folklore studies became a battleground across which issues of racial identity and difference were asserted and debated at the turn of the twentieth century The study is framed by two questions of historical and continuing import What role have representations of black folklore played in constructing racial identity And how have those ideas impacted the way African Americans think about and creatively engage black traditions Moody Turner renders established historical facts in a new light and context taking figures we thought we knew such as Charles Chesnutt Anna Julia Cooper and Paul Laurence Dunbar and recasting their place in African American intellectual and cultural history

Long Black Song Houston A. Baker, 1990 Houston Baker maintains that black American culture grounded in a unique historical experience is distinct from any other and that it has produced a body of literature that is equally and demonstrably unique in its sources values and modes of expression He argues that black American literature is rooted in black folklore animal tales trickster slave tales religious tales folk songs spirituals and ballads and that a knowledge of this tradition is essential to the understanding of any individual black author or work To demonstrate the continuity of this tradition Baker examines themes that appear in folklore and persist throughout contemporary black literature Freedom and Apocalypse for example traces the idea that black Americans are a chosen people who will by some violent means overthrow the white man's tyranny The essays culminate in an examination of the life and work of Richard Wright Baker's treatment of Wright as a black American artist who recorded the black man's shift from an agrarian to an urban setting places Wright and the tradition of black literature and culture in a fresh perspective
