The Pauline Idea of Faith in Its Relation to Jewish and Hellenistic Religion William Henry Paine Hatch, 1917 The Pauline Idea of Faith in Its Relation to Jewish and Hellenistic Religion Charles Cutler Torrey, William Henry Paine Hatch, 1916

The Pauline Idea of Faith in Its Relation to Jewish and Hellenistic Religion William Henry Paine Hatch, 2010 The Pauline Idea of Faith in Its Relation to Jewish and Hellenistic Religion William Henry Paine Hatch, 1917 Abraham's Faith in Romans 4 Benjamin Schliesser, 2007 The concept of faith is at the core of Paul's theology and the classic passage for his understanding of pistis is Genesis 15:6. After discussing the history of scholarship on the Pauline concept of faith Benjamin Schliesser explores the literary tradition historical and structural questions of Genesis 15 and offers a detailed exegesis of verse 6 with its fundamental terms count righteousness and believe. He then points to the theological significance of this testimony on Abraham for the Jewish identity it comes into sight in a multifaceted and nuanced process of reception from later Old Testament texts Psalm 106 Nehemiah 9 to a broad array of literature from Second Temple Judaism Septuagint Sirach 44 Jubilees 14 4QPseudo Jubilees 4QMMT 1 Maccabees Philo. In the final and most substantial step he asks about Paul's hermeneutics of faith. How does Paul in his exegesis of the Genesis quote in Romans 4 come to view Abraham as the father of all believers? What is the concept of faith that he develops on the basis of Genesis 15:6? Taking into account the manifold textual and thematic links between Romans 4 Romans 3:21-31 and Romans 1:16-17 a unique twofold structure of faith discloses itself. Pistis designates first a divinely established sphere of power i.e. a new christologically determined salvation historical reality and second human participation in this reality i.e. individual believing in the community of believers. Particularly the first aspect is generally overlooked in modern scholarship The American Journal of Theology University of Chicago. The Historical Backgrounds of Early Methodist Enthusiasm

Umphrey Lee, 2009-01-06 Does God really communicate his will to individuals so that they receive infallible guidance in that sense which the ancient Greeks called enthusiasm? Both the Old Testament and the New maintain that the true prophets received direct advices from God which regardless of consequences they were morally bound to communicate even to the skeptical among their contemporaries. The recent canonization of Joan of Arc is a fresh proof that the Catholics believe in the possibility of private revelations. Luther, Calvin and the English Reformers were hostile to those Anabaptists and others who alleged they were actually receiving new revelations and early Massachusetts felt that the most dangerous of Anne Hutchinson's heresies was her claim to immediate inspiration for the motions she followed might not be those of God but the Devil. Dr. Lee sketches the belief in direct inspiration from its Hebraic and Greek roots down to the time of the French Prophets who amazed London. Early Methodism arose in such an atmosphere. He has therefore examined the early records of the Methodist movement and gathered evidence from its friends and from its enemies to answer the question: How far did some of the early Methodists believe that they were directly moved by God? Journal of Theological Studies, 1918
