Policies On Imports From Economies In Transition:

Russian Trade Policy Reform for WTO Accession Harry G. Broadman, 1998-01-01 Russia has manifested considerable interest in accession to the World Trade Organization WTO This volume contains four policy papers that focus on the most prominent topics during the ongoing WTO accession process 1 the dispersion of Russia's tariff structure 2 trade and investment in the service sectors 3 the treatment of state trading enterprises and 4 the policy regime governing foreign direct investment Bringing the Russian Federation into the rules based WTO system is an objective broadly shared by the world community Accession to the WTO comes at a critical juncture for the Russian government to focus on many important policy issues to stimulate growth As part of the process of making liberalization commitments as required by the existing members of the WTO accession provides an opportunity to lock in reforms

Policies on Imports from Economies in Transition Peter D. Ehrenhaft, 1997-01-01 Over the past 15 years the availability of cheap and convenient microcomputers has changed the collection methods and analysis of household survey data in developing countries making the data available within months rather than years Simultaneously analysts have become more interested in exploring ways in which such data may be used to inform and improve the steps involved in policymaking This book reviews the analysis of household survey data including the construction of household surveys the econometric tools that are the most useful for such analysis and a range of problems in development policy for which the econometric analysis of household surveys is useful and informative The author's approach remains close to the data relying on transparent econometric and graphical techniques to present the data so that policy and academic debates are clearly informed The author illustrates the analysis through examples of policy issues from several countries including Cote d'Ivoire India Pakistan Taiwan China and Thailand Two introductory chapters discuss the content and construction of surveys as well as the econometric methods that can be used with survey data Survey design and sampling are covered in some detail as are the effect of survey design on the calculation of statistics and the estimation of parameters A chapter on econometrics explores issues such as heteroskedasticity sample selection and instrumental variables Four chapters focus on poverty and inequality demand analysis and intrahousehold allocation price and tax reform and savings Each chapter presents a self contained development of the topic introduces the important empirical issues and provides substantive results The book also includes the computer code used to calculate the results so that readers can adapt the methods to yield similar results for other data

Economic Transition in the Middle East Heba Ahmad Handoussa, 1997 Is there a new development paradigm This volume brings together a number of studies on the major issues of adjustment as they apply to countries of the Middle East and North Africa MENA The authors draw on economic political and institutional theory in order to appraise and compare the development models identify the determinants of sustained growth apply the new development concepts to the case of MENA countries and suggest viable options to reduce the political and social constraints to reform Four sets of issues are vividly highlighted throughout the book the issue of integration into the global economy and the speed with which foreign trade should be liberalized the issue of divestiture and the merits of following various privatization strategies the issue of state intervention in the context of liberalization and private sector orientation and the issue of democratization and the political economy of reform Contributors Fikret Adaman Nazih Ayubi Driss Ben Ali Amar Bhattacharya Ha Joon Chang Byron Gangnes Giacomo Luciani Seiji Naya Jeffrey B Nugent John M Page Jr Raed Safadi Mona Said Khaled Sakr Murat Sertel Russia's Economic Transitions Nicolas

Spulber, 2003-04-10 Russia's Economic Transitions examines the three major transformations that the country underwent from the early 1860s to 2000 The first transition under Tsarism involved the partial break up of the feudal framework of land ownership and the move toward capitalist relations The second following the Communist revolution of 1917 brought to power a system of state ownership and administration a sui generis type of war economy state capitalism subjecting the economy's development to central commands The third started in the early 1990s and still unfolding is aiming at reshaping the inherited economic fabric on the basis of private ownership The three transitions originated within different settings but with a similar primary goal namely the changing of the economy's ownership pattern in the hopes of providing a better basis for subsequent development The treatment's originality impartiality and historical breadth have cogent economic social and political relevance International Business: Concepts, Methodologies, Tools, and Applications Management

Association, Information Resources, 2016-03-17 Business transactions and partnerships across borders have become easier than ever due to globalization and global digital connectivity As part of this shift in the business sphere managers executives and strategists across industries must acclimate themselves with the challenges and opportunities for conducting business globally International Business Concepts Methodologies Tools and Applications presents the latest research innovations focusing on cross cultural communications and training international relations multinational enterprises outsourcing international business strategies and competitive advantage in the global marketplace This publication is an exhaustive multi volume work essential to academic and corporate libraries who serve researchers scholars business executives and professionals and graduate level business students India, an Industrializing Economy in Transition, 1989 This report analyzes the industrial and trade policies that would help assure a smooth transition from the highly protected industrial environment of the past in which direct controls were a key means of allocating resources to a more open environment in which competitive forces have a much greater role in shaping investment output and pricing decisions The report examines the past framework of domestic regulatory policies and incentives for industrial development the impact of these policies on industrial structure and performance the recent changes in industrial policies and extensions of these measures that would accelerate the transition The report goes on to examine ways in which trade policies have protected domestic industry the effects of this protection on manufacturing performance and the measures which could be taken over time to restore a greater degree of competition both with imports and in export markets The report concludes that reforms of domestic and external regulatory policies would need to be made simultaneously over the medium term to effect a successful transition to a more competitive efficient and faster growing industrial sector

The Economic Transition in Myanmar After 1988

Kōichi Fujita, Fumiharu Mieno, Ikuko Okamoto, 2009 For many years Myanmar operated an inward looking economic system built on import substitution Ultimately this policy failed leaving behind inefficient state economic enterprises and widespread poverty Political unrest in 1988 led a newly installed military government to liberalize the economy opening it to foreign investment and private participation in trade This move towards a market economy was in line with world wide trends but political instability forced the country to follow a course different from neighboring countries By analyzing economic policies and performance across the economic spectrum this book presents an overall picture of economic development in Myanmar between 1988 and the early 2000s The authors synthesize both macro and micro level data to overcome some of the limitations of unreliable national statistics and show how the government attempted to deal with two key issues it faced The first was how to reform the inefficient socialistic economic system in conformity with a market economy and the second was how to develop the agricultural and underdeveloped economy to alleviate mass poverty

The Political Economy of Clean Energy Transitions Douglas Arent, Channing Arndt, Mackay Miller, Finn Tarp, Owen Zinaman, 2017-04-07 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC SA 3.0 IGO licence It is free to read at Oxford Scholarship Online and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations The 21st Conference of the Parties CoP21 to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change UNFCCC shifted the nature of the political economy challenge associated with achieving a global emissions trajectory that is consistent with a stable climate The shifts generated by CoP21 place country decision making and country policies at centre stage Under moderately optimistic assumptions concerning the vigour with which CoP21 objectives are pursued nearly every country will attempt to design and implement the most promising and locally relevant policies for achieving their agreed contribution to global mitigation These policies will vary dramatically across countries as they embark on an unprecedented era of policy experimentation in driving a clean energy transition This book steps into this new world of broad scale and locally relevant policy experimentation The chapters focus on the political economy of clean energy transition with an emphasis on specific issues encountered in both developed and developing countries The authors contribute a broad diversity of experience drawn from all major regions of the world representing a compendium of what has been learned from recent initiatives mostly but not exclusively at country level to reduce GHG emissions As this new era of experimentation dawns their contributions are both relevant and timely

Political Power and Economic Policy Gordon C. Rausser, Johan Swinnen, Pinhas Zusman, 2011-09-30 This book analyzes the links between political economics governance structures and the distribution of political power in economic policy making The book theoretically explains and empirically quantifies these interactions The analysis includes both public good policies and redistributive policies Part I of the book presents the conceptual foundations of political economic bargaining and interest group analysis After presenting the underlying theory Part II of the book examines ideology prescription and political power coefficients Part III analyzes a number of specific structures and Part IV presents a framework for political econometrics with a number of empirical applications and testable hypotheses In all four parts of the book four analytical dimensions of public policy are distinguished governance structures political economy mechanism design and incidence Reproducing Class Henry Rutz,Erol M. Balkan,2009-02-01 Middle classes are by definition ambiguous raising all sorts of paradoxical questions perceived and real about their power and place relative to those above and below them in a class structured society Focusing on families of the new middle class in Istanbul the authors of this study address questions about the social construction of middle class reality in the context of the rapid changes that have come about through recent economic growth in global markets and the global diffusion of information technology After 1980 Turkey saw a structural transformation from state owned and managed industry banking and media and communications to privatization and open markets The idea of being middle class and the reality of middle class practices became open for negotiation and interpretation This study therefore offers a particularly interesting case study of an emergent global phenomenon known as the transnational middle class characterized by their location of work in globalizing cities development of transnational social networks sumptuary consumption habits and residences in gated communities As the authors show this new middle class associates quality education followed by property and lifestyle issues with the concept of a comfortable life
