Lal, R. Snape, 2001-03-28 Trade Development and Political Economy takes fundamental issues in trade and development policy and subjects them to well based economic analysis in a form that is easily accessible to the non specialist Distinguished contributors address some of the following questions Are critics of outward orientated development wrong What caused the financial crisis of East Asia Who supports trade and aid in the US And what are the conditions needed to promote growth They also look forward to what trade policies and agreements will be needed in the future The Political Economy of Trade Policy Devashish Mitra, 2016-03-11 The Political Economy of Trade Policy Theory Evidence and Applications is a collection of sole authored and co authored papers by Devashish Mitra that have been published in various scholarly journals over the last two decades It covers diverse topics in the political economy of trade policy ranging from the role of modeling lobby formation in the context of trade policy determination to its applications to the question of unilateralism versus reciprocity and trade agreements It also includes the theory and the empirics of the choice of policy instruments Finally the book presents the empirical investigation of the Grossman Helpman Protection for Sale model as well as the Mayer Median Voter model of trade policy determination Trade, Development, and Political Economy Ronald Findlay, 1993 Trade Development and Political Economy demonstrates the power of trade theory to illuminate issues not only within its conventional boundaries but also outside of them in the fields of development history and political economy Featuring Ronald Findlay s key papers written over the past two decades this volume addresses problems that are a mixture of the conceptual and the methodological such as the theory of comparative advantage and the dynamics of interaction between the advanced and developing regions of the world economy and the topical and historical such as the impact of oil shocks on employment and the role of trade and slavery in the emergence of the Industrial Revolution The majority of these papers develop a model derived from the rich tradition of classical and neoclassical trade theory and apply that model to a relevant analytical or historical question The themes in these essays range over the intersection of international trade economic development and political economy ensuring that this volume will be of interest to all those concerned with the implications of trade theory for economics development and related fields The Political Economy of Globalization Satya Dev Gupta, 1997-04-30 Globalization is transforming the world at an accelerated pace Integration of the world continues widening and intensifying international linkages in economic political and social relations Liberalization of trade and finance lubricated by revolutionary changes in information technology has resulted in significant economic growth at the global level On the other hand the process of globalization is changing the nature of production relations threatening the traditional roles of the nation state and carrying with it far reaching implications for sustainable growth development and the environment Although both developed and developing countries are actively participating in this saga of globalization nearly ninety countries as the United Nations Human Development Report 1996 indicates are worse off economically than they were ten years ago leading to global polarization between haves and have nots The report further indicates that the gap between the per capita incomes of the industrialized world and the developing countries far from narrowing has more than tripled during the last thirty years Further a majority of the countries benefitting from this globalization drive have seen a rise in inequality and poverty This failure of market driven globalization to reward the benefits equitably led the United Nations to proclaim 1996 as the International Year for the Eradication of Poverty IYEP and the decade of 1997 2006 as the international decade for the eradication of poverty and to promote people centered sustainable development
