Walker, 2015-08-27 A collection of essays on the politics of boundaries this book addresses a broad range of cases some geographical some legal and some involving less tangible practices of inclusion and exclusion The book begins by exploring the boundary between modern Western forms of international relations and their constitutive outsides Beyond this the author engages with relations between subjectivity and security security and nature social movements and a world politics as well as the politics of spatiotemporal dislocation Two chapters address the work of Thomas Hobbes and Max Weber as exemplary accounts of the relationship between boundaries and the constitution of modern forms of politics Each chapter speaks not only to the politics of specific boundary practices but also to the limits within which modern politics has been shaped in relation to claims about spatiality temporality sovereignty and subjectivity In this way the book draws attention to a pervasive account of a scalar order of higher and lower that has shaped more familiar distinctions between internality and externality Offering an analysis of the relation between concepts of internationalism imperialism and exceptionalism as well as the implications of spatiotemporal dislocation for claims about democracy the book links contemporary claims about the transformation of boundaries to various ways in which political life is said to be in crisis and in need of novel forms of critique Brought up to date by a new and extensive introductory essay and an assessment of the status of political judgement after 9 11 this book is essential reading for students and scholars of politics international relations political theory and political sociology

From Kyoto to the Town Hall Anders Biel, Lennart J. Lundqvist, 2013 International agreements such as the Kyoto Protocol EU regulation and country specific national climate policies offer some hope of addressing climate change But all too often implementation of these high level objectives is derailed at the sub national local and perhaps most important individual level by a variety of structural policy and perceived barriers that result in a failure of effective action Drawing on original research from Sweden a world leader in effective environmental solutions this volume examines the difficulties of aligning climate policy from international to national and sub national levels The authors address the full range of barriers and complexities including governance structures the relationship between experts and the public political feasibility tax measures perceptions of fairness and self interest and the importance of environmental values Also covered are the roles and perceptions of organizations and professions the place of carbon free technologies such as wind power the relationship between national and EU regulations and the monumental challenge of governing the climate in a bordered and divided world This volume is a vital source of information for all those seeking to create effective coordinated responses to the challenge of climate change

Planting the Anthropocene Jennifer Clary-Lemon, 2019-03-15 Planting the Anthropocene is a rhetorical look into the world of industrial tree planting in Canada that engages the themes of nature culture and environmental change Bringing together the work of material ecocriticism and critical affect studies in service of a new materialist environmental rhetoric Planting the Anthropocene forwards a frame that can be used to work through complex scenes of anthropogenic labor Using the results of interviews with seasonal Canadian tree planters Jennifer Clary Lemon interrogates the complex and messy imbrication of nature culture through the inadequate terminology used to describe the actual circumstances of the planters work and lives and offers alternative ways to conceptualize them Although silvicultural workers do engage with the limiting rhetoric of efficiency and humanism they also make rhetorical choices that break down the nature culture divide and orient them on a continuum that blurs the boundaries between the given and the constructed the human and nonhuman Tree planting work is approached as a site of a deep seated materiality a continued re creation of the land s disturbance rather than a simplistic form of doing good that further separates humans from landscapes Jennifer Clary Lemon s view of nature and the Anthropocene through the lens of material rhetorical studies is thoroughly original and will be of great interest to students and scholars of rhetoric and composition especially those focused on the environment

Temagami's Tangled Wild Jocelyn Thorpe, 2012-02-03 Canadian wilderness seems a self evident entity yet as this volume shows in vivid historical detail wilderness is not what it seems In Temagami's Tangled Wild Jocelyn Thorpe traces how struggles over meaning racialized and gendered identities and land have made the Temagami area in Ontario into a site emblematic of wild Canadian nature even though the Teme Augama Anishnabai have long understood the region as their homeland rather than as a wilderness Eloquent and accessible this engaging history challenges readers to acknowledge the embeddedness of colonial relations in our notions of wilderness and to reconsider our understanding of the wilderness ideal
