The Drama of Serial Conversion in Early Modern England Holly Crawford Pickett, 2024-03-12 In The Drama of Serial Conversion in Early Modern England Holly Crawford Pickett reconceptualizes early modern religious identity by exploring the astonishing stories of serial converts historical figures such as William Alabaster Kenelm Digby William Chillingworth and Marc Antonio De Dominis along with fictional ones who changed their religious affiliations between Catholicism and Protestantism multiple times Pickett argues that serial converts both reveal and helped revise early modern understandings of the self Through investigation of the techniques that serial converts used to stage and justify their conversions Pickett demonstrates the performative nature of the act of conversion itself offering a counternarrative to the paradigm of sincere private conversion that was on the rise in the tumultuous years following the Reformation Drawing from archival investigation into the lives and works of serial converts and performance studies theory this book shows how the genres and conventions associated with conversion shaped not only forms of communication but also the very experience of conversion By juxtaposing plays about serial conversion by Thomas Dekker and Philip Massinger Thomas Middleton Elizabeth Cary Ben Jonson and William Shakespeare with spiritual autobiographies Pickett highlights the shared task of convert and playwright performing conversion for an audience Serial converts served as uncomfortable reminders to their contemporaries that religious identity is always unverifiable The first study to explore serial conversion as a discrete phenomenon in this era The Drama of Serial Conversion in Early Modern England challenges confessional divisions within much early modern historiography by analyzing the surprising convergence of Protestant and Catholic in the figure of the serial convert It also reveals a neglected strain of religious discourse in early modern England that valued mutability and flexibility even in the midst of hardening and increasingly narrow understandings of conversion

Early Modern Metaphysical Literature Michael Morgan Holmes, 2001-01-19 Early Modern Metaphysical Literature illuminates now obscured aspects of cultural negotiation and denaturalization germane to numerous Metaphysical texts Examining poetry and prose by Donne Marvell Lanyer Crashaw and Edward Herbert this book challenges readers to recognize the provocative strangeness of these writings in their original contexts and today Rhetoric, Medicine, and the Woman Writer, 1600-1700 Lyn Bennett, 2018-02-08 How did physicians come to dominate the medical profession Lyn Bennett challenges the seemingly self evident belief that scientific competence accounts for physicians dominance Instead she argues that the whole enterprise of learned medicine was in large measure facilitated by an intensely classical education that included extensive training in rhetoric and that this rhetorical training is ultimately responsible for the achievement of professional dominance Bennett examines previously unexplored connections among writers and genres as well as competing livelihoods and classes Engaging the histories of rhetoric medicine literature and culture throughout she goes on to focus specifically on the work of women who professed as well as practiced medicine Pointing to some of the ways women s writing shapes realities of body mind and spirit as it negotiates social cultural and professional ideologies of gender this book offers an important corrective to some long held beliefs about women s role in early modern discourse

Making Space Public in Early Modern Europe Angela Vanhaelen, Joseph P. Ward, 2013-04-26 Broadening the conversation begun in Making Publics in Early Modern Europe 2009, this book examines how the spatial dynamics of public making changed the shape of early modern society. The publics visited in this volume are voluntary groupings of diverse individuals that could coalesce through the performative uptake of shared cultural forms and practices. The contributors argue that such forms of association were social productions of space as well as collective identities. Chapters explore a range of cultural activities such as theatre performances, travel, and migration practices of persuasion, the embodied experiences of lived space, and the central importance of media and material things in the creation of publics and the production of spaces. They assess a multiplicity of publics that produced and occupied a multiplicity of social spaces where collective identity and voice could be created, discovered, asserted, and exercised. Cultural producers and consumers thus challenged dominant ideas about just who could enter the public arena, greatly expanding both the real and imaginary spaces of public life to include hitherto excluded groups of private people. The consequences of this historical reconfiguration of public space remain relevant, especially for contemporary efforts to meaningfully include the views of ordinary people in public life.
