The classic monograph on a much loved artist reissued in a spectacular oversize format In the early work of John Singer Sargent 1856 1925 Henry James saw the slightly uncanny spectacle of a talent which on the threshold of its career has nothing more to learn Sargent's talent nay genius was indeed uncanny sustained with equal intensity through his famed society portraits like the scandalous Madame X his full size showpieces like The Daughters of Edward Darley Boit his thousands of watercolors executed en plein air from Venice to Corfu to Maine to Montana and his ambitious mural decorations for the public monuments of Boston In Carter Ratcliff Sargent has found a biographer and critic nearly his match in style and subtlety Ratcliff expertly evokes the expatriate American milieu into which the artist was born and offers penetrating insights into every phase of his career every aspect of his work Now for the first time this landmark monograph is offered in a special oversize format with all of its 310 illustrations reproduced in stunning full color many at full page size allowing the reader to appreciate the master's every brushstroke This new edition of John Singer Sargent will be a treasured reference for artists and an unalloyed delight for art lovers John Singer Sargent Masterpieces of Art Janet Tyson, Flame Tree Studio, 2017 This work features the luminescent evocative art of Italian born American painter John Singer Sargent the 19th century celebrated portraitist of the wealthy and their privileged world Renowned for his exquisite naturalism this beautiful volume also offers his most delightful landscapes travel scenes and watercolours John Sargent Evan Charteris, 2020-05-30 The official biography of John Singer Sargent This book is the official biography of John Singer Sargent 1856 1925 published two years after his death in 1927 by his friend the Hon Evan Charteris John Sargent was the leading portrait painter of his generation famous for his portrayal of Edwardian era high society He was born in Florence to American parents and remained throughout his life an expatriate artist travelling throughout Europe and eventually settling at his London studio at 31 Tite Street In later life he retired from portraiture to complete public murals in America This book documents Sargent's journey starting as shy rambunctious child more interested in the outdoors than schooling and with a natural talent for drawing His mother Mrs Sargent with her insatiable love of travel was convinced that traveling around Europe was a satisfactory alternative to formal education for the young artist In M rren among the Swiss mountains he received his first lessons on how to draw a head from Mr Joseph Farquharson In Rome at age thirteen he studied watercolor under the guidance of the German American landscape painter Carl Welsch At age eighteen he began his formal art training at the atelier of Carolus Duran then the most popular portrait painter in Paris and was soon after admitted to the prestigious cole des Beaux Arts His talent was immediately celebrated by the public and after a brief scandal involving his now infamous portrait of Madame X he enjoyed a successful career as the leading painter of his era Sargent was a member of many art and literary circles of his time and was especially fond of great writers The book discusses his friendship with literary stars such as Robert Louis Stevenson Henry James Edmund Gosse and includes an essay on Sargent as a youth by Vernon Lee his childhood friend that remained close all his life The book also discusses his friendship to fellow painters and includes his letters to and from his friend and mentor Claude Monet Also addressed is Sargent's opinion of growing new movements in modern art including a letter in which he discusses Paul Cézanne Although Sargent expressed distaste for these new rebels they undoubtedly influenced his later work The book includes 50 illustrations as well as a catalogue raisonné The Hon Sir Evan Charteris K C 1864 1940 was an English biographer and art administrator He was chairman of the Trustees of the National Portrait Gallery in 1928 and chairman of the Tate Gallery Board in 1934 He was also a Trustee of the National Gallery and the Wallace Collection
