Happiness and the Limits of Satisfaction Deal Wyatt Hudson, 1996 In classical and medieval times happiness was defined as well being a notion that included moral goodness Today happiness is most often defined as well feeling and identified with subjective states such as satisfaction and peace of mind Deal Hudson argues that the prevailing view is dangerous in politics as well as ethics creating individuals with no other sense of obligation than finding personal satisfaction regardless of the moral and spiritual cost to themselves and others Hudson calls for a return to the classical tradition no one should be called happy who cannot also be called morally good However a contemporary version of happiness should also go beyond the classical notion by making room in the happy life for suffering and passion Using the history of the idea of happiness as a backdrop to a critique of contemporary views Hudson examines happiness from philosophical religious psychological sociological literary and political points of view for example he shows how the tension between the two definitions of happiness is at the heart of the Declaration of Independence The result is an excellent overview of the history of an idea as well as a compelling argument for moral and political change in our time

Monstrous Work and Radical Satisfaction Eve Dunbar,2024-11-05 Radical Black feminist refusal through the works of mid twentieth century African American women writers Monstrous Work and Radical Satisfaction offers new and insightful readings of African American women s writings in the 1930s 1950s illustrating how these writers centered Black women s satisfaction as radical resistance to the false and incomplete promise of liberal racial integration Eve Dunbar examines the writings of Ann Petry Dorothy West Alice Childress and Gwendolyn Brooks to show how these women explored self fulfillment over normative and sanctioned models of national belonging Paying close attention to literary moments of disruption miscommunication or confusion rather than ease assimilation or mutual understanding around race and gender Dunbar tracks these writers dissatisfaction with American race relations She shows how Petry West Childress and Brooks redeploy the idea of monstrous work to offer potential modalities for registering Black women s capacity to locate satisfaction within the domestic and interpersonal While racial integration may satisfy the national idea of equality and inclusion it has not met the long term needs of Black people s quest for equity Dunbar responds demonstrating how these mid century women offer new blueprints for Black life by creating narrative models for radical satisfaction Black women s completeness joy and happiness outside the bounds of normative racial inclusion Novel Relations Alicia Mireles

Christoff,2019-12-17 The first comprehensive look at how Victorian fiction and British psychoanalysis shaped each other Novel Relations engages twentieth century post Freudian British psychoanalysis in an unprecedented way as literary theory Placing the writing of figures like D W Winnicott W R Bion Michael and Enid Balint Joan Riviere Paula Heimann and Betty Joseph in conversation with canonical Victorian fiction Alicia Christoff reveals just how much object relations can teach us about how and why we read These thinkers illustrate the ever shifting impact our relations with others have on the psyche and help us see how literary figures characters narrators authors and other readers shape and structure us too For Christoff novels are charged relational fields Closely reading novels by George Eliot and Thomas Hardy Christoff shows that traditional understandings of Victorian fiction change when we fully recognize the object relations of reading It is not by chance that British psychoanalysis illuminates underappreciated aspects of Victorian fiction so vibrantly Victorian novels shaped modern psychoanalytic theories of psyche and relationality including the eclipsing of empire and race in the construction of subject Relational reading opens up both Victorian fiction and psychoanalysis to wider political and postcolonial dimensions while prompting a closer engagement with work in such areas as critical race theory and gender and sexuality studies The first book to examine at length the connections between British psychoanalysis and Victorian fiction Novel Relations describes the impact of literary form on readers and on twentieth and twenty first century theories of the subject The Fountainhead of Chinese Erotica Charles R. Stone,2003-03-31 The Lord of Perfect Satisfaction Ruyijun zhuan a short work of fiction from the early sixteenth century tells the story of the Tang dynasty s notorious Wu Zetian the only woman to rule as emperor of China

It is famous not for the history it relates but for its graphic sexual descriptions the first ever in a Chinese novel purportedly given from a woman's point of view. Despite its renown and unmistakable influence on later writing, the origins and significance of the Ruyijun zhuan have never been explored in any language and until now it has never been translated. Its date of composition is unknown, its author unidentified. One of its earliest appraisals, written by a contemporary scholar known for his conservatism, maintains that the Ruyijun zhuan is a moral work notwithstanding its sexual content. Combining a complete translation with a detailed and far-ranging study of the text, The Fountainhead of Chinese Erotica places this important cultural document into historical context and offers possibilities on its meaning. Snakes' Legs Martin W. Huang, 2004-09-30 Snakes Legs examines sequels, xushu, a common but long neglected literary phenomenon in traditional China. What prompted writers to produce sequels despite their poor reputation as a genre? What motivated readers to read them? How should we characterize the nature of the relationship between sequels and rewritings? Contributors to this volume illuminate these and other questions, and the collection as a whole offers a comprehensive consideration of this vigorous genre while suggesting fascinating new directions for research. Xushu as a discursive practice reinforces the paradox that innovation is impossible without imitation. It presents us with fertile ground for studying the intricate ties that bind the writer and reader of traditional Chinese fiction: the writer of xushu is always self-consciously assuming the dual role of author and reader and in the writing process must consider both the work in progress as well as its precursor's. Snakes Legs contains detailed discussions of some representative xushu works from the late Ming and Qing periods, many of which have received little scholarly attention. It will shed light on the development of Chinese fiction and the various textual practices in traditional China as well as account for the genre's continuing vitality in modern times. Contributors: Robert E. Hegel, Siao Chen, Hu, Martin W. Huang, Keith McMahon, Qiancheng Li, Ying Wang, Ellen Widmer, Laura H. Wu, Shuhui Yang. Corporeal Narrative in David Foster Wallace's Fiction Xiaomeng Wan, 2025-07-13 This book serves as a critical examination of contemporary American literature by examining David Foster Wallace's incorporation of corporeal narrative techniques in his novels, with a particular focus on The Broom of the System, Infinite Jest, and The Pale King. By employing corporeal narratology as a conceptual framework, it sheds light on Wallace's profound exploration of the human body and its societal implications. Through detailed analysis, the book reveals how Wallace's narratives serve as a critique of contemporary issues such as self-alienation, consumerism, and the dehumanizing effects of modern society. Designed for scholars and students of literature, cultural studies, and narrative theory, this book provides a comprehensive understanding of Wallace's literary legacy and his keen observations on the complexities of human existence in the modern world. Women, Violence and Postmillennial Romance Fiction Emma Roche, 2023-04-21 This book interrogates the significance of the revival and reformulation of the romance genre in the postmillennial period. Emma Roche examines how six popular novels published between 2005 and 2015—Twilight, Fifty Shades of Grey, Gone Girl, Sharp Objects, and The Girl on the Train—reanimate and modify recognisable tropes from the romance genre to reflect a neoliberal and postfeminist cultural climate As such Roche argues these novels function as crucial spaces for interrogating and challenging those contemporary gender ideologies Throughout the book Roche addresses and critiques several key attributes of neoliberal postfeminism including a pervasive emphasis on individualism and personal responsibility an insistent requirement for self monitoring self surveillance and bodywork the celebration of consumerism and its associated pleasures the prescription of mandatory optimism and suppressing one s negative emotions and the endorsement of choice as a primary marker of women s empowerment While much critical attention has been devoted to those attributes and their pernicious effects Roche argues that one crucial repercussion has been largely overlooked in contemporary cultural criticism how these ideologies function together to effectively sanction gender based violence Thus Roche exploits textual analysis to demonstrate the subtle ways in which neoliberal postfeminism can augment women s vulnerability to male violence
