Science and Speculation Jonathan Barnes, J. Brunschwig, 2005-11-10 Studies the impact that the advances in philosophy and science had on each other in Greece between 300 B C and A D 200 Science and Speculation \(Classic Reprint\) George Henry Lewes, 2015-09-27 Excerpt from Science and Speculation 1 Theology Philosophy and Science constitute our spiritual triumvirate The limits of their several dominions have been insensibly shifting so that at various epochs in History they have been of very varied importance For centuries the predominance of Theology was absolute and undisputed Philosophy meanwhile grew apace till at last it was enabled to assert an independent position and while these two rivals struggled for supremacy Science was also quietly and obscurely feeling its way to independence 2 The office of Theology is now generally recognised as distinct from that of Philosophy and from that of Science Its ancient claim to authority over all regions of inquiry has long been felt to be untenable and has been frankly relinquished Although claiming to hold the keys of the highest Truth it nevertheless no longer pretends to decide upon the lower but confesses its inability to furnish Research with effective Methods or Knowledge with available data It restricts itself to the region of Faith and leaves to Philosophy and Science the region of Inquiry Its main province is the province of Feeling its office is the systematisation of our religious conceptions This is the office not of one Theology but of all No matter what other functions the various Theologies may assume they invariably assume this and give it pre eminence It is thus not only their common characteristic but also their highest characteristic and now that the course of human evolution has detached both Philosophy and Science from Theology this systematisation remains its sole function 3 The office of Science is distinct It may be defined as the systematisation of our knowledge of the order of phenomena considered as phenomena It co ordinates common knowledge It explains the order of phenomena by bringing them under their respective laws of co existence and succession classing particular facts under general conceptions 4 The office of Philosophy is again distinct from these It is the systematisation of the conceptions furnished by Theology and Science It is eTrMrrryz 7 rio T77zwi As Science is the systematisation of the various generalities reached through particulars so Philosophy is the systematisation of the generalities of generalities In other words Science furnishes the Knowledge and Philosophy the Doctrine Each distinct science embraces a distinct province of knowledge About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works The Principles of Bond Investment
