States of Nature Stuart George McCook, 2010-07-05 The process of nation building in Latin America transformed the relations between the state the economy and nature Between 1760 and 1940 the economies of most countries in the Spanish Caribbean came to depend heavily on the export of plant products such as coffee tobacco and sugar After the mid nineteenth century this model of export led economic growth also became a central tenet of liberal projects of nation building As international competition grew and commodity prices fell over this period Latin American growers strove to remain competitive by increasing agricultural production By the turn of the twentieth century their pursuit of export led growth had generated severe environmental problems including soil exhaustion erosion and epidemic outbreaks of crop diseases and pests This book traces the history of the intersections between nature economy and nation in the Spanish Caribbean through a history of the agricultural and botanical sciences Growers and governments in Venezuela Puerto Rico Cuba Colombia and Costa Rica turned to scientists to help them establish practical and ideological control over nature They hoped to use science to alleviate the pressing environmental and economic stresses without having to give up their commitment to export led growth Starting from an overview of the relationship among science nature and development throughout the export boom of 1760 to 1930 Stuart McCook examines such topics as the relationship between scientific plant surveys and nation building the development of a creole science to address the problems of tropical agriculture the ecological rationalization of the sugar industry and the growth of technocratic ideologies of science and progress He concludes with a look at how the Great Depression of the 1930s changed the paradigms of economic and political development and the role of science and nature in these paradigms

Our Caribbean Kin Alai Reyes-Santos, 2015-06-15 Beset by the forces of European colonialism US imperialism and neoliberalism the people of the Antilles have had good reasons to band together politically and economically yet not all Dominicans Haitians and Puerto Ricans have heeded the calls for collective action So what has determined whether Antillean solidarity movements fail or succeed In this comprehensive new study Alai Reyes Santos argues that the crucial factor has been the extent to which Dominicans Haitians and Puerto Ricans imagine each other as kin Our Caribbean Kin considers three key moments in the region's history the nineteenth century when the antillanismo movement sought to throw off the yoke of colonial occupation the 1930s at the height of the region's struggles with US imperialism and the past thirty years as neoliberal economic and social policies have encroached upon the islands At each moment the book demonstrates specific tropes of brotherhood marriage and lineage have been mobilized to construct political kinship among Antilleans while racist and xenophobic discourses have made it difficult for them to imagine themselves as part of one big family Recognizing the wide array of contexts in which Antilleans learn to affirm or deny kinship Reyes Santos draws from a vast archive of media including everything from canonical novels to political tracts historical newspapers to online forums sociological texts to local jokes Along the way she uncovers the conflicts secrets and internal hierarchies that characterize kin relations among Antilleans but she also discovers how they have used notions of kinship to create cohesion across differences
