

Parent-Teacher Conferences: A Tip Sheet for Principals

Parent-teacher conferences are an important component of ongoing home-school communication and family involvement in your school. Years of research demonstrate that family involvement in education can lead to positive benefits for children and youth, such as increased school attendance, higher academic performance, and improved attitudes about school. As principal, your leadership will ensure that these conferences achieve their maximum potential. This tip sheet offers some suggestions to support you as you lead the effort to improve the attendance and effectiveness of parent-teacher conferences at your school.

Ideas for Before the Conferences

- Send the message. Communicate the importance of conferences to the whole school. As a form of family involvement, parent-teacher conferences can be an important instructional improvement strategy.
- Share guidelines. Let both families and teachers know about goals and logistics of parent-teacher conferences. Include information about the availability of child care, transportation, and/or translation services, as well as alternate scheduling options.
- Publish. Disseminate information about parent-teacher conferences in the broader community to help overall attendance.
- Provide professional development. Work with teachers to provide information about best practices in conducting effective parent-teacher conferences.
- Make student data accessible. Help families access data about their child's attendance and performance electronically and through other formats. Let families know that this information is used to support student learning and growth.
- Create a welcoming school environment. Ensure that families feel welcomed into your school by considering the following: displaying student work throughout the building, allocating space where parents can wait comfortably for conferences to begin, having school information in multiple languages and translators available for conferences, and providing transportation and/or child care support during conferences.

Approaching Parent-Teacher Conferences

- A two-way conversation. The parent-teacher conference is an opportunity for parents to learn about their children's progress in school and for teachers to gain insights into their students' home and community lives. Parent perspectives on student strengths and needs, learning styles, and non-school learning opportunities can help teachers shape their instructional methods.
- Emphasis on learning. Research shows that family involvement is most effective when it is "linked to learning." An important goal of the first parent-teacher conference is to develop new strategies to support student learning at school and at home. Teachers should be prepared to discuss the academic progress of their students by using examples of student work and assessments during conferences.
- Opportunities and challenges. The tone of parent-teacher conferences should be balanced so that all involved understand what the student is doing well and what he or she can improve upon. Achieving this balance sends the message that your school values student strengths and has high expectations for all.
