

Essay Sample on Learning of Mathematics Essay

Introduction

I am a learner and a future teacher of mathematics. Mathematics is a science that uses the logic of quantity, shape, and arrangement. I love mathematics and this makes me be very active and interactive during a mathematics lesson. At the beginning of this course, I had a poor perspective of mathematics from the bad influence of my colleagues. However, as soon as my mathematics lessons started, I gained interest and had a lot of fun with this course. Mathematics is an essential discipline for us all and is applicable to for many college courses. Through learning of math, I have gained a lot of skills and knowledge that I would like to practice in future as a teacher of mathematics. In my class of mathematics, I learned topics such as algebra, statistics, geometry, and trigonometry. This class is of great importance in my life in various ways. For instance, it helps me think critically, solve problems in a more effective way, and improve my power of reasoning. Additionally, my math class has equipped me with effective communication skills, creativity, and abstract reasoning. Below is a discussion of my learning about mathematics, myself as a learner, and the teaching and learning of mathematics.

A Major Learning About Mathematics

All people are capable of doing the math. People learn differently but everybody learns. The new evidence from Brain Research tells us that everyone, with the right teachings and messages, can be successful in math, and everyone can achieve at the highest levels in school. The potential of the brain to grow and change is just as strong in children with special needs. A lot of scientific evidence suggests that the difference between those who succeed and those who do is not the brains they were born with, but their approach to life, the messages they receive about their potential, and the opportunities they have to learn. The very best opportunities to learn come about when students believe in themselves. No one is born knowing math, and no one is born lacking the ability to learn math.

Conversation among faculty members shows that we need to reflect the new science of the brain and communicate to all that everyone can learn math well, not only those believed to hold a gift. Van de Walle o People use ideas they already have and construct new ideas, developing in the process a network of connections between ideas. The more ideas used and more connections made the better people understand. Freire o Teachers can deprive students of the right of their own purpose and learning o Some teachers already have a curriculum in mind for the students they just want them to get the grade and not understand the thinking behind the material being taught. This removes the legitimist thinking and just fills them will know they will not hold onto. o Students can submit to teachers' rules and lose their own ideas and personality "one does not liberate people by alienating them" o The teacher is no longer merely the one-who-teachers, but one who is himself taught in dialogue with the students, who in turn while being taught also teach. They become jointly responsible for a process in which all grow.

Concepts learned in mathematics are applicable in real life situations. For instance, the concept of
