The Uncertain Sciences Bruce Mazlish,2017-07-28 This sweeping inquiry into the present condition of the human sciences addresses the central questions What sort of knowledge do the human sciences claim to be offering To what extent can that knowledge be called scientific and What do we mean by scientific in such a context In this wide ranging book one of the most esteemed cultural historians of our time turns his attention to major questions about human experience and various attempts to understand it scientifically Mazlish considers the achievements failings and possibilities of the human sciences a domain that he broadly defines to include the social sciences literature psychology and hermeneutic studies In a rich and original synthesis built upon the work of earlier philosophers and historians Mazlish constructs a new view of the nature and meaning of the human sciences Starting with the remote human past and moving through the Age of Discovery to the present day Mazlish discusses the sort of knowledge the human sciences claim to offer He looks closely at the positivistic aspirations of the human sciences which are modeled after the natural sciences and at their interpretive tendencies In an analysis of scientific method and scientific community he explores the roles they can or should assume in the human sciences His approach is genuinely interdisciplinary drawing upon an array of topics from civil society to globalization to the interactions of humans and machines

The Promise of Critical Theology Charles Davis, Marc P. Lalonde, Canadian Corporation for Studies in Religion, 1995-11-06 Written in tribute to one of the foremost Catholic theologians in the English speaking world the essays in The Promise of Critical Theology address the question Can critical theology secure its critical operation without undermining its foundation in religious tradition and experience Is critical theology simply an oxymoron when viewed from both sides of the equation From Marc Lalonde's introductory essay which delimits Davis' fundamental position that the primary task of critical theology is the critique of religious orthodoxy the essays examine Davis' distinction between faith and belief and build upon the promise of critical theology as inextricably bound to the promise of faith They ask What is its promise What particular religious ideas, themes, stories are appropriate for its concrete expression How can the community of faith receive its transformative message What might be the contribution of other religious traditions and philosophies Essays by Paul Lakeland, Dennis McCann, Kenneth Melchin, Michael Oppenheim and Marsha Hewitt respond to these and other questions and critically relate Davis' work to ongoing developments in modern theology, critical theory, philosophy and the social sciences Their diversity attests to the comprehensive scope of Davis' thought and exemplifies the progressive character of contemporary religious discourse They honour Davis and illuminate the promise of critical religious thinking in itself
