exchange have generated much new knowledge about intergroup and regional interaction The American South west and Mesoamerica Systems of Prehistoric Exchange is the first of two volumes that seek to provide current information regarding regional exchange on a continental basis From a theoretical perspective these volumes provide important data for the comparative analysis of regional systems relative to sociopolitical organization from simple hunter gatherers to those of complex sociopolitical entities like the state Although individual regional exchange systems are unique for each region and time period general patterns emerge relative to sociopolitical organization Of significant interest to us are the dynamic processes of change stability rate of growth and collapse of regional exchange systems relative to sociopolitical complexity These volumes provide basic data to further our understanding of prehistoric exchange systems The volume presents our current state of knowledge about regional exchange systems in the American Southwest and Mesoamerica Each chapter synthesizes the research findings of a number of other researchers in order to provide a synchronic view of regional interaction for a specific chronological period A diachronic view is also provided for regional interaction in the context of the developments in regional sociopolitical organization Most authors go beyond description by proposing alternative models within which to understand regional interaction The book is organized by geographical and chronological divisions to provide units of the broader mosaic of prehistoric exchange systems Public Information Series, 1992 Life in a Corner

Robert S. McPherson, 2015-04-27 Community building in the Four Corners area of southeastern Utah required specialized knowledge and a good bit of determination on the part of settlers who wrested a livelihood from the Colorado Plateau Robert S McPherson the region's leading historian draws on oral history and personal archives to write about cowboys and homesteaders loggers and sawmill operators law enforcement officers and bootleggers miners and midwives trappers and builders In Life in a Corner he shapes their stories into a fascinating mosaic of cultural and environmental history unique to this region McPherson demonstrates that above all settlers worked hard in order to succeed in this often forbidding land A first person account of erecting a Latter day Saint tabernacle tells of volunteers using only what was under their feet or came from a nearby mountain Other chapters give an insider's perspective on cowboying in canyon country bringing law and order to a virtually lawless land waging war against wolves and coyotes and homesteading on some of the last large desert tracts in the continental United States But the most gripping stories center on the ingenuity of those who lived these personal experiences Only a veteran trapper would think of burying an alarm clock to attract a coyote Only a determined bootlegger would devise a saddle made of leather covered copper equipped with a spigot to dispense moonshine by the cup Only committed or desperate miners would sail with a one way ticket to a gold field in a hidden desert chasm What were midwives being taught at the turn of the century and how did their practice involve equal parts religious doctrine and medical procedure What was a qualifying examination like for the first forest rangers And how did small close knit communities handle slackers during World War I Life in a Corner answers these and many other questions while offering fresh perspectives on past events and current controversies

Ceramic Production in the American Southwest Barbara J.

Mills, Patricia L. Crown, 2000-03-01 Covering nearly a thousand years of southwestern prehistory and history this volume brings together the best of current research to illustrate the variation in the organization of ceramic production evident in this single geographic area UGMS Public Information Series, 1991 River Flowing from the Sunrise James M.

Aton, Robert S. McPherson, 2000-12-15 The authors recount twelve millennia of history along the lower San Juan River much of it the story of mostly unsuccessful human attempts to make a living from the river's arid and fickle environment From the Anasazi to government dam builders from Navajo to Mormon herders and farmers from scientific explorers to busted miners the San Juan has attracted more attention and fueled more hopes than such a remote unpromising and muddy stream would seem to merit Reflections in Place Donna Deyhle, 2022-12-06 Woven together in Donna Deyhle's ethnohistory are three generations and twenty five years of friendship interviews and rich experience with Navajo women Through a skillful blending of sources Deyhle illuminates the devastating cultural consequences of racial stereotyping in the context of education Longstanding racial tension in southeastern Utah frames this cross generational set of portraits that together depict all aspects of this specifically American Indian struggle Deyhle cites the lefthanded compliment Navajos work well with their hands which she indicates represents the limiting and all too common appraisal of American Indian learning potential that she vehemently disputes and seeks to disprove As a recognized authority on the subject qualified by multiple degrees in racial and American Indian studies Deyhle is able to chronicle the lives and survivance of three Navajo women in a way that is simultaneously ethnographic and moving Her critique of the U S education system's underlying yet very real tendency toward structural discrimination takes shape in elegant prose that moves freely into and out of time and place The combination of substantive sources and touching personal experience forms a profound and enduring narrative of critical and current importance While this book stands as a powerful contribution to American Indian studies its compelling human elements will extend its appeal to anyone concerned with the ongoing plight of American Indians in the education system trajectories established in the 1980s and 1990s Considering a broad range of topics including environment Indigenous peoples geography migration and politics these essays straddle multiple modern frontiers not least of which is the temporal frontier between our unsettled past and uncertain future These forays into the twenty first century West will inspire more scholars to pull histories to the present and by doing so reinsert scholarly findings into contemporary public awareness
