gradually spread over the downtown edges into the inner ring. Perspectively situated in the fields of urban landscape and urban border studies, the research project outlines how the eastward redevelopment wave in San Diego contests socialized neighborhood boundary perceptions by transforming the former first tier suburbs from disinvested communities into urban villages and trendy places to be. The study shows how the redevelopment perforates, dissolves, and shifts socialized linear neighborhood boundaries into areas that are simultaneously part of the one and the other neighborhood. In the present work, the resulting rather undefined or stretched border areas have been referred to as hybrid urban borderlands. This notion is a novel conceptual approach that can be deemed a promising lens for future studies on neighborhood change, urban redevelopment, and socio-spatial re-interpretation beyond the context of San Diego.

History of San Diego, 1542-1907

William Ellsworth Smythe, 1907 San Diego Legends Jack Scheffler Innis, 2004 San Diego journalist Jack Innis describes the many fascinating people and events that influenced the development of San Diego plus the colorful characters and groups that made headlines in the past century. The book is filled with contemporary photos of historic landmarks and places as well as vintage illustrations and photographs.

Unequal Neighbors Kristen Hill Maher, David Carruthers, 2021-04-02 San Diego and Tijuana are the site of a national border enforcement spectacle, but they are also neighboring cities with deeply intertwined histories, cultures, and economies. In Unequal Neighbors, Kristen Hill Maher and David Carruthers shift attention from the national border to a local one, examining the role of place stigma in reinforcing actual and imagined inequalities between these cities. Widespread bordered imaginaries in San Diego represent it as a place of economic vitality, safety, and order while stigmatizing Tijuana as a zone of poverty, crime, and corruption. These dualisms misrepresent complex realities on the ground, but they also have real material effects: the vision of a local border benefits some actors in the region while undermining others. Based on a wide range of original empirical materials, the book examines how asymmetries between these cities have been produced and reinforced through stigmatizing representations of Tijuana in media, everyday talk, economic relations, and local tourism discourse and practices. However, both place stigma and borders are subject to contestation, and the book also examines debordering practices and counter narratives about Tijuana's image. While the details of the book are particular to this corner of the world, the kinds of processes it documents offer a window into the making of unequal neighbors more broadly. The dynamics at the Tijuana border present a framework for understanding how inequalities that manifest in cultural practices produce asymmetric borders between places.
