Shift! Craig Elias, Tibor Shanto, 2010-06-25 There is a silver bullet in sales its called timing when you get to highly motivated decision makers at EXACTLY the right time after they experience a Trigger Event BUT before they call your competition When you have the right timing the sale almost happens by itself There are few challenges getting to the prospect understanding their dissatisfaction presenting a solution or closing the sale By luck or sheer numbers youve had timing happen before not its time to make it happen again and again and again simple but profound truths that will help you leverage intent for immediate action and cut down the selling cycle while creating lasting bonds with customers Stephen M R Covey author of the New York Times and 1 Wall Street Journal bestseller The Speed of Trust an entirely new perspective on things that are hiding in plain sight for all sales professionals Well done Kevin Fancey Senior Vice President of Sales Ricoh Canada Inc By combining the power of relationships with timing what Elias and Shanto call Trigger Events the authors present a powerful sales strategy Keith Ferrazzi 1 NYT Bestselling author of Who's Got Your Back and Never Eat Alone Elias and Shanto have brought referrals into the 21st Century showing you how to capitalize on the key moments that will bring you success in a busy fast paced world This is a must read Ivan Misner NY Times Bestselling author and Founder of BNI and the Referral Institute

Maier, 2012-12-06 Two areas have fascinated me for a long time One is the microeconomic theory of consumer behavior the other one the role of space in economic processes Usually the two don't go together very well In more advanced versions of microeconomic consumer theory its economic actor may face uncertainty have to allocate resources over time or have to take into account the characteristics of products but rarely deals with space He/she inhabits a spaceless point economy Regional Science on the other hand describes and analyzes the spatial structure and development of the economy but either ignores individual decision making altogether or treats it in a rather simplistic way In this book I try to bring together these two areas of interest of mine I do this by use of the microeconomic concept of search and placing it in an explicit spatial context The result in my opinion is a theoretical concept with fascinating implications a broad set of potential implications and numerous interesting research questions After reading this book where I layout the basic idea of spatial search describe its elements and discuss some of its implications I hope the reader will share this opinion There are still plenty of unanswered research questions in this part of economic theory Hopefully this book will stimulate more work along these lines

Seeking Chances Emanuele Bardone, 2011-03-16 One of the most distinguishing abilities that human beings display is the ability of turning almost everything into a clue to make a problem affordable in relation to what one knows and most of all to what one does not know That is what characterizes humans as chance seekers A poor pattern of reasoning and even our ignorance may help us make a decision and eventually solve a problem This is the rationale of biased rationality However not everything leads us always to a good decision Some people are not satisfied with weak arguments or it is just so strategies They want something better This second attitude points to a different form of rationality that takes advantage of the idea of distributed cognition Basically human beings improve their survival strategies by building cognitive niches capable of delivering potentially ever more symptomatic information It is through various manipulations of the environment that we gain new and more reliable chances which can be used to debias our rationality Through the laborious activity of cognitive niche construction we come up with situations in which we are better afforded by our environment and thus biases or fallacies cease to be appealing Caught by Surprise United States. Congress. House. Committee on Science and Technology (2007). Subcommittee on Investigations and Oversight, 2010 Role Exit in Prison Officers Sarah

Nixon, Darren Woodward, 2024-12-30 Exploring why prison officers leave His Majesty's Prison and Probation Service HMPPS and the processes and trajectories involved in returning to civilian life this book examines the reasons that prison officers want to leave HMPPS and how they transition back to civvy street As well as presenting qualitative data from interviews with ex prison officers the authors also draw analytically on their insider positionality to offer insights on the lived experience of prison officers both in the role and on their subsequent departure from the service In doing so they identify the rewards and challenges of working in a prison environment while using Ebaugh's 1988 four stage model of role exit as a theoretical framework to help understand the process of leaving the prison service Among the issues addressed are the impact of austerity the Voluntary Early Departure Scheme the decline in transmission of knowledge jail craft to new recruits high staff turnover increased violence and the impact of COVID 19 These are counterbalanced by an exposition of what ex prison officers recall positively about their time in service such as loyalty support solidarity and pride in the uniform and helping prisoners with their custodial lives The authors also put forward practical recommendations for ways in which HMPPS could encourage prison officers to stay in post for longer Providing authentic insights into the role of ex prison officers this book is ideal reading for students and academics of criminology penology criminal justice sociology and criminal psychology It will also be of interest to criminal justice practitioners and organisations such as Unlocked Graduates the Howard League for Penal Reform and the Prison Reform Trust The Massachusetts register, 1988 Searching the Grey Literature Sarah Bonato, 2018-06-13 Searching the Grey Literature is for librarians interested in learning more about grey literature If you have ever been asked for a grey literature search but didn't know where to start this book will help you craft your search successfully If you are an expert searcher but find that your library patrons are unfamiliar with the vast body of grey literature this book may be a useful teaching aid Those that are both new arrivals and established professionals in the field of librarianship will learn much about grey literature from reading this book and hopefully acquire new search skills and knowledge Although a wide range of different types of librarians or information professionals may find the content of this book useful those working in the areas of health or social science will benefit the most from the book's content Searching the Grey Literature discuss different aspects of grey literature including an introduction to grey literature the value of grey literature search sources for grey literature and how to conduct needs assessment before beginning a grey literature search Search techniques for identifying grey literature documents selecting and evaluating grey literature search sources and best searching practices are also discussed in detail Digital Urban Modeling and Simulation Stefan Müller Arizona, Gideon Aschwanden, Jan Halatsch, Peter Wonka, 2012-07-06 This book is thematically positioned at the intersections of Urban Design Architecture Civil Engineering and Computer Science and it has the goal to provide specialists coming from respective fields a multi angle overview of state of the art work currently being carried out It addresses both newcomers who wish to obtain more knowledge about this growing area of interest as well as established researchers and practitioners who want to keep up
