Primary Care Research Encounter Records And The Denominator Problem:

Primary Care Research S. James Kilpatrick, Russell M. Boyle, 1984-01-01 Brings together for the first time the world experts both clinicians and statisticians on the denominator problem the question of what constitutes the physician's practice and how best to measure it Comparison and Harmonisation of Denominator Data for Primary Health Care

Research in Countries of the European Community Martin Schlaud, 1999 Used extensively in North America and Europe seminal practice networks also referred to as practice research networks recruit office based physicians to monitor defined events among their patients such as influenza mumps and asthma attacks at regional county and even national levels After adequate analysis these data indicate spatial and temporal trends in event frequencies comparability of national results is however limited partly due to the different national health systems influencing the demand of medical care More importantly the lack of comparable data on the population from which the cases arise denominator data obstructs the comparison of data from primary care research between different regions or countries Residential Radon Contamination and Indoor Quality

White, 2012-12-06 My conviction is that the matters addressed in this volume are of transcendental importance if we are to face up to the challenges of the 1990s and beyond How for instance are we to cope with a truly ecological approach to public health and all its concomitant changes of risk groups worldwide unless there is a full appreciation of the population perspective throughout the health establishment The global village has achieved a measure of interdependence requiring recognition by all concerned with the health of both individuals and communities that there is an urgent need to share our knowledge and deploy our resources in the best interests of people everywhere The history of public health initiatives the origins of epidemiology and the tragic separation virtually a divorce of public health from medicine recounted in the chapters that follow argue strongly for an early rapprochement Health professionals who complement each other's knowledge and skills can be reunited through their common reliance on epidemiology as a major fundamental science for the entire health enterprise Henceforth epidemiology should be ranked in importance with cellular and molecular biology immunology and the social and systems sciences all are essential if we are to cope with the vast array of diseases and disorders that face us in both the developed and developing worlds We need more first rate laboratory scientists clinicians nurses aides village health workers and managers committed to serving the public Perspectives of Information Processing in Medical Applications Francis H. Roger France, Gerald Santucci, 2012-12-06 Europe faces a challenge how to apply information and communication technologies to health care One problem is the widening gap between the expectations of citizens and the limited resources available to provide health services It is here that advanced technology can serve as an important tool to find innovative and more efficient ways of delivering health services This book reports the summary of a study performed under contract by a team of consultants for
