Raising Money For Education A Guide To The Property Tax:

Raising Money for Education David H. Monk, Brian O. Brent, 1997-09-09 How can we create a funding system that is fair to every school and every taxpayer Or is this an impossible goal That is the issue Monk and Brent raise The authors offer an overview of the current trends in school funding sources They explain how the property tax system works They examine the elements necessary to fair taxation and explore tax reform options that could bring in more dollars for education Consider these pertinent questions about any proposed future public education tax Is the tax fair Does it generate money efficiently Is there a potential growth of the tax base Will this tax be a stable source of revenue for schools How hard will it be to administer this tax Will the public comply with this tax The authors offer real insights into the issues surrounding how we get and how we spend the money for our schools The book also looks at alternative ways to raise funds such as taxes based on income sales and lotteries It delivers thoughtful well researched information for anyone who is interested in the future of public education and how we will fund it Cutting Costs and Generating Revenues in Education Tim L.

Adsit, George R. Murdock, 2011 At no time in the history of public education has there been such a dramatic discrepancy between accelerated standards and expectations and adequate funding for our schools Much has been written about how to achieve new expectations in the realm of student achievement Much has also been written about the need for accountability and the restructuring of how education dollars are spent Unfortunately most of the input regarding the need for belt tightening is unaccompanied by any tangible solutions or suggestions and results only in hollow rhetoric or convenient political sound bites Tim Adsit and George Murdock's journey into meaningful avenues for cost savings in public education is clearly an exception In this book readers will find many practical ideas for saving money which can be readily implemented

Resources in Education, 1999-04 Making Money Matter National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Behavioral, Cognitive, and Sensory Sciences, Committee on Education Finance, 1999-11-30 The United States annually spends over 300 billion on public elementary and secondary education As the nation enters the 21st century it faces a major challenge how best to tie this financial investment to the goal of high levels of achievement for all students In addition policymakers want assurance that education dollars are being raised and used in the most efficient and effective possible ways The book covers such topics as Legal and legislative efforts to reduce spending and achievement gaps The shift from equity to adequacy as a new standard for determining fairness in education spending The debate and the evidence over the productivity of American schools Strategies for using school finance in support of broader reforms aimed at raising student achievement This book contains a comprehensive review of the theory and practice of financing public schools by federal state and local governments in the United States It distills the best available knowledge about the fairness and productivity of expenditures on education and assesses options for changing the finance system Selected Papers in School Finance, 2000 Selected Papers in School Finance, 2000-01, 2000 Practical Strategies for Applied
