

The sun on the night-blooming cactus; or pure in spirit as the mountain stream, subsiding in the pine-bush hollow, an earnest and rugged old character as the granite peaks; and as wide in sympathy as the wide spreading desert, is Sharlot M. Hall, the true lady of the Old American's Mansion and Arizona's beloved garden laureate.

Sharlot Hall's life is a record of the past, present, and future. She is an indelible way, in Arizona. As a child she learned the pluck of the old immigrant trader as a girl she knew him of the early cattle country; as a young woman she walked in the footsteps of Arizona's earliest youth; and mature woman she sang the song of the pioneer home of its charming as a story; as a devoted sister would she care for the "immigrant" of Arizona in the days when grief with the loss and sorrow which only age can give to these things held dear. Her life well represents the recorded generations of the passing youth, women, and generations and her poems are the best memorial that to the Immigrant photographed scenes is projected upon the scenes for later generations to behold."
