The Road from the Monument Storm Jameson, 2011-09-28 Storm Jameson's fine novel tells the story of two men their beginnings ambitions wives failures successes Gregory Mott is seen at first solely through the eyes of other people the old man who taught him when he was a child his aristocratic wife his oldest friend Lambert Corry and Harriet Ellis at one time his mistress and still his close friend He is a religious man a writer whose Anglican beliefs have had considerable influence For the past ten years he has been a successful Director of the Rutley Institute of Arts What man could be happier or more secure But suppose such a man makes an error social or moral and makes the further blunder of denying it During a journey abroad this happens Afterwards in London truth eats its way into his life through the defences of fear vanity self deception egoism Friends and his religious assurance itself fail him and step by step he is driven to look at himself in the clearest bearable light The other man Lambert Corry makes no errors And though at one moment he runs some risk of recognising himself his prudence and agility save him from this danger Apart from the journey through France and the scene in a pilgrimage village in Switzerland the action takes place in London much of it in Mott s house on the north side of Hyde Park The view from this house seen at different times of day or night at different seasons forms the background for a novel which is both a social comedy and the account of one man s unwilling discovery of himself

Medieval Monasteries J. Patrick Greene,2005-10-01 This book provides an account of the archaeology of medieval monastic houses throughout Great Britain and Ireland The application of a wide range of archaeological techniques allied to historical investigation has awakened interest in monasteries Important new sources of information have transformed knowledge of monastic life As well as discussing many of the advances made by research over the last two decades innovative methods of archaeological investigation are described and examples of good practice in the preservation of sites and their interpretation to visitors are provided Suggestions for further research examples of outstanding monastic sites to visit a glossary of terms a comprehensive bibliography and an index are also included

Portmahomack: Monastery of the Picts Martin Carver,2008-07-01 During the 19th and 20th centuries a trail of chance finds on the outskirts of Portmahomack led to the first exposure in 1996 of a Pictish settlement in northern Scotland The area became the subject of one of the largest research excavations ever to have taken place on the Scottish mainland This book describes the discovery and excavation of an early monastery Dating from the 6th to the 9th century AD Portmahomack is one of the earliest Christian sites to be revealed in Britain and the first in the land of the Picts The monastery was destroyed between 780 and 830 AD and was then lost to history before being unearthed by one of the largest archaeological research projects ever seen in Scotland
