Global Corporations and National Governments Edward Graham,1996-06-01 There is inherent tension between the increasingly global focus of foreign investors and the continuing national focus of governments Countries particularly developing ones compete to attract investment from global corporations and they attach performance requirements to tilt the impact of those investments in their favor This is because the host nations expect investment to raise growth levels efficiency and living standards At the same time the home countries of such corporations worry that their firms are not accorded fair and reciprocal treatment abroad These issues have become a source of conflict among nations one that could escalate considerably if an agreement is not soon reached Graham s study analyzes the nature and depth of the international investment problem and its potential impact on the world economy and on economic relations among nations He urges that current rules on foreign direct investment be enlarged and restructured via new international rules and institutional arrangements and offers two alternatives for doing so
