David Baud

Prenatal Care Reaching Mothers Reaching Infants:

Prenatal Care Institute of Medicine, Division of Health Promotion and Disease Prevention, Committee to Study Outreach for Prenatal Care, 1988-02-01 Prenatal care programs have proven effective in improving birth outcomes and preventing low birthweight Yet over one fourth of all pregnant women in the United States do not begin prenatal care in the first 3 months of pregnancy and for some groups such as black teenagers participation in prenatal care is declining To find out why the authors studied 30 prenatal care programs and analyzed surveys of mothers who did not seek prenatal care This new book reports their findings and offers specific recommendations for improving the nation's maternity system and increasing the use of prenatal care programs

Generating Innovative Strategies for Healthy Infants and Children United States. Congress. House. Select Committee on Children, Youth, and Families, 1991 In this report of a hearing on infants and children's health two factsheets present information on the lack of recent progress in reducing infant mortality rates the accessibility of prenatal care low birthweight nutrition inadequate child health care health risks for low income children the lack of adequate health insurance the health care provider shortage inflexibilities of the medical system the limits of technology in addressing the issue of infant mortality the relationship of maternal behaviors and characteristics such as drug use and marital status to infant mortality and the need for services that remove unnecessary bureaucracy from the health care system Statements were made by nine representatives and by Senator Bill Bradley Statements or other materials were presented by six other individuals representing organizations or government agencies Topics included those covered in the factsheets and one stop shopping for health care services an outbreak of measles and Bush administration initiatives to address the problem of providing child health care BC

From Neurons to Neighborhoods National Research Council, Institute of Medicine, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Integrating the Science of Early Childhood Development, 2000-11-13 How we raise young children is one of today's most highly personalized and sharply politicized issues in part because each of us can claim some level of expertise The debate has intensified as discoveries about our development in the womb and in the first months and years have reached the popular media How can we use our burgeoning knowledge to assure the well being of all young children for their own sake as well as for the sake of our nation Drawing from new findings this book presents important conclusions about nature versus nurture the impact of being born into a working family the effect of politics on programs for children the costs and benefits of intervention and other issues The committee issues a series of challenges to decision makers regarding the quality of child care issues of racial and ethnic diversity the integration of children's cognitive and emotional development and more Authoritative yet accessible From Neurons to Neighborhoods presents the evidence about brain wiring and how kids learn to speak think and regulate their behavior It examines the effect of the climate family child care community within which the child grows

Adolescent Health: Background and the effectiveness of selected prevention and treatment services, 1991 This three volume work presents the Office of Technology's assessment of the physical emotional and behavioral health status of contemporary American adolescents including those living in poverty racial and ethnic minority groups Native Americans and rural adolescents Specific topics covered are identifying risk and protective factors for adolescent health problems evaluating options in the organization of health services and technologies available to adolescents assessing options in the conduct of national health surveys to improve collection of adolescent health statistics and identifying gaps in research on the health and behavior of adolescents

Prevention, Reducing the Odds National Research Council, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Institute of Medicine, Committee on Perinatal Transmission of HIV, 1999-02-13 Thousands of HIV positive women give birth every year Further because many pregnant women are not tested for HIV and therefore do not receive treatment the number of children born with HIV is still unacceptably high What can we do to eliminate this tragic and costly inheritance In response to a congressional request this book evaluates the extent to which state efforts have been effective in reducing the perinatal transmission of HIV The committee recommends that testing HIV be a routine part of prenatal care and that health care providers notify women that HIV testing is part of the usual array of prenatal tests and that they have an opportunity to refuse the HIV test This approach could help both reduce the number of pediatric AIDS cases and improve treatment for mothers with AIDS Reducing the Odds will be of special interest to federal state and local health policymakers prenatal care providers maternal and child health specialists public health practitioners and advocates for HIV AIDS patients January
