Heritage Conservation in the United States John H. Sprinkle, Jr., 2023-05-25 Heritage Conservation in the United States begins to trace the growth of the American historic preservation movement over the last 50 years viewed from the context of the civil rights and environmental movements The first generation of the New Preservation 1966 1991 was characterized by the establishment of the bureaucratic structures that continue to shape the practice of heritage conservation in the United States The National Register of Historic Places began with less than a thousand historic properties and grew to over 50 000 listings Official recognition programs expanded causing sites that would never have been considered as either significant or physically representative in 1966 now being regularly considered as part of a historic preservation planning process The book uses the story of how sites associated with African American history came to be officially recognized and valued and how that process challenged the conventions and criteria that governed American preservation practice This book is designed for the historic preservation community and students engaged in the study of historic preservation

The Conservation Movement: A History of Architectural Preservation Miles Glendinning, 2013-01-17 Winner of the 2016 Antoinette Forrester Downing Award presented by the Society of Architectural Historians In many cities across the world particularly in Europe old buildings form a prominent part of the built environment and we often take it for granted that their contribution is intrinsically positive How has that widely shared belief come about and is its continued general acceptance inevitable Certainly ancient structures have long been treated with care and reverence in many societies including classical Rome and Greece But only in modern Europe and America in the last two centuries has this care been elaborated and energised into a forceful dynamic ideology a Conservation Movement infused with a sense of historical destiny and loss that paradoxically shared many of the characteristics of Enlightenment modernity The close inter relationship between conservation and modern civilisation was most dramatically heightened in periods of war or social upheaval beginning with the French Revolution and rising to a tragic climax in the 20th century age of totalitarian extremism more recently the troubled relationship of heritage and global commercialism has become dominant Miles Glendinning's new book authoritatively presents for the first time the entire history of this architectural Conservation Movement and traces its dramatic fluctuations in ideas and popularity ending by questioning whether its recent international ascendancy can last indefinitely

Historic Preservation in the USA Karolin Frank, 2013-03-09 Since the 1960s public attention has been drawn increasingly towards the thematic link between historic preservation and urban planning Nowadays the organized historic preservation movement in the USA is more than a mere yearning for history it represents an active and integral part of urban planning in US cities In order to approach these planning economic and social issues in the field of historic preservation this book analyzes a variety of interdisciplinary methods focusing on four selected historic districts within the central business districts of Philadelphia and Boston in the north and Charleston and Savannah in the south Housing and Planning References, 1981 Preserving Historic New England James Michael Lindgren, 1995 Resisting not simply this avalanche of change but the amateurish romanticism of fellow antiquaries Appleton founded the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities in 1910 A Richer Heritage Robert E. Stipe, 2003 Surveying the past present and future of historic preservation in America this text features 15 essays by some of the most eminent voices in the field essays which highlight the principle ideas and events that have shaped and continue to shape the movement Landmarks

Preservation and the Property Tax David Listokin, 2017-07-12 Historic preservation is an issue of growing importance and public commitment Federal and state mechanisms have been established to identify and support historic buildings sites while local governments have been active in supporting and protecting historic resources Communities across the country have established designation programs whereby individual buildings or districts of historical architectural significance are accorded landmark status Designation activity has been accompanied by growing interest in other local incentives disincentives to the support of historic buildings In this regard the property tax is viewed as either a possible powerful drawback to or a catalyst of preservation This study examines the relationship between historic preservation and the property tax focusing on the question of how designated buildings should be assessed for real taxation purposes Listokin focuses on New York City in considering the effects of historic status on property value and in evaluating assessment practices But this book s findings are transferrable to other communities because the base conditions are similar Many other cities have designation programs modeled on New York City s In addition New York s property tax system and administrative processes resemble those found in communities across the nation To enhance the transferability of this study s findings Listokin refers to the national experience and literature typically on a side by side basis with the New York City counterpart

Science and Technology in Historic Preservation Ray A. Williamson, Paul R. Nickens, 2000-04-30 Technology transfer has played an increasingly important role in historic preservation during the latter half of the twentieth century a situation attested to by the undertaking of an important congressional study in 1986 that assessed the role of federal agencies in the field In this book leading researchers update the earlier findings and contribute state of the art reviews and evaluations of technological progress in their areas of expertise
