

The background of the book cover is a detailed illustration of a historic building's facade and roof. The building has a light-colored, textured wall with several windows featuring dark metal grates. Above the main facade, a tiled roof is shown in the process of being renovated. Three workers are visible on the roof: one on the left is using a long pole, another in the center is working with a tool, and a third on the right is using a long pole to reach a higher section. Debris and wooden scaffolding are scattered across the roof. In the top left corner, there is a small, square, light-colored structure, possibly a chimney or a small tower.
