Preventing Violence In Relationships Interventions Across The Life Span:

Preventing Violence in Relationships Paul A. Schewe, 2009 In this book contributing authors take a developmental approach to examining violence prevention in intimate relationships and families Until recently the study of violence prevention has focused on reducing the incidence of assaults by strangers despite statistics that indicate people are twice as likely to be victimized by a friend relative or intimate partner Authors view relationship violence not only as something that may be prevented at many points during the life span of a person but also as something that must be prevented at key points especially during childhood if violence is to be reduced in the future All violence is essentially interpersonal so the contributors to this book focus on healthy interpersonal relationship skills as the basis for preventing violence Each chapter covers relationship violence at a different stage of life and in different relationships from child and partner abuse to rape and elder abuse Authors provide empirical research results as well as practical guidance for day to day interventions in the lives of children and adults The editor believes this book will be valuable to researchers interested in the field of violence prevention and practitioners working with the victims or perpetrators of violence PsycINFO Database Record c 2004 APA all rights reserved Family Violence Across the Lifespan Ola W.
