Preventing Occupational Exposures to Antineoplastic and Other Hazardous Drugs I National Institute Safety and Health, 2015-03-13 The adverse health effects associated with antineoplastic agents cancer chemotherapy drugs cytotoxic drugs in cancer patients and some non cancer patients treated with these drugs are well documented The very nature of antineoplastic agents make them harmful to healthy cells and tissues as well as the cancerous cells For cancer patients with a life threatening disease there is certainly a great benefit to treatment with these agents However for the health care workers who are exposed to antineoplastic agents as part of their work practice precautions should be taken to eliminate or reduce exposure as much as possible Pharmacists who prepare these drugs or nurses who may prepare and or administer them are the two occupational groups who have the highest potential exposure to antineoplastic agents Additionally physicians and operating room personnel may also be exposed through the treatment of patients Hospital staff such as shipping and receiving personnel custodial workers laundry workers and waste handlers all have potential exposure to these drugs during the course of their work The increased use of antineoplastic agents in veterinary oncology also puts these workers at risk for exposure to these drugs
