Regional Archaeology In Eastern Inner Mongolia A Methodological Exploration:

Early Christian Remains of Inner Mongolia Tjalling H. F. Halbertsma, 2015-07-28 Drawing on recent discoveries this study reconstructs the material culture of the Christians in Inner Mongolia. As much of this material no longer survives in the field it provides an insight into the rise and disappearance of a Christian culture in Asia. Hongshan Regional Organization in the Upper Daling Valley Christian E. Peterson, Lu Xueming, Robert D. Drennan, Zhu Da, 2014-05-20 A detailed report on regional local and household scale research on Hongshan societies 4500-3000 BCE in northeastern China. Regional demography and community patterns are analyzed for an area of 200 square kilometers surrounding the excavated ceremonial site of Dongshanzui. More intensive study of Hongshan residential remains through surface collection, magnetometer survey and stratigraphic tests informs the interpretation of the results of regional scale survey. Dongshanzui's public architecture along with additional unexcavated ceremonial platforms are shown to be at the heart of a regional scale concentration of Hongshan residential occupation that represents an independent small chiefly polity with no more than 1000 inhabitants. Its neighbors were other similar small polities related to each other through peaceful interaction but without larger scale political integration. Complete text in English and Chinese. Prehistoric Societies on the Northern Frontiers of China Gideon Shelach, 2016-04-08 The northern borders of China, known as the Northern zone, were a key area of interaction between sedentary and nomadic people during the late second and early first millennium BCE. During this period the region's unique economy, socio-political systems, local cultures and identities took shape. Prehistoric Societies on the Northern Frontiers of China analyses the archaeological record to examine the changes that took place in Northern China in the first millennium. Drawing on field work in the Chifeng area of Inner Mongolia, the book explores dramatic changes in the construction of identities alongside more gradual changes in subsistence strategies and political organization. The book is unique in integrating the archaeological data and historical records of this period with anthropological theory to examine the role of identity construction and the use of symbol in the shaping of East Asian society. The Archaeology of Early China Gideon Shelach-Lavi, 2015-01-26 This book covers Chinese archaeology from the first people to the unification of the empire, emphasizing cultural variations and interregional contact. A Companion to Chinese Archaeology Anne P. Underhill, 2013-02-26 A Companion to Chinese Archaeology is an unprecedented new resource on the current state of archaeological research in one of the world's oldest civilizations. It presents a collection of readings from leading archaeologists in China and elsewhere that provide diverse interpretations about social and economic organization during the Neolithic period and early Bronze Age. An unprecedented collection of original contributions from international scholars and collaborative archaeological teams conducting research on the Chinese mainland and Taiwan. Makes available for the first time in English the work of leading archaeologists in China. Provides a comprehensive view of research in key geographic regions of China. Offers diverse methodological and theoretical approaches to understanding China's past.

Ancient China and its Eurasian Neighbors Katheryn M. Linduff, Yan Sun, Wei Cao, Yuanqing Liu, 2017-11-23 This volume examines the role of objects in the region north of early dynastic state centers at the intersection of Ancient China and Eurasia a large area that stretches from Xinjiang to the China Sea from c 3000 BCE to the mid eighth century BCE This area was a frontier an ambiguous space that lay at the margins of direct political control by the metropolitan states where local and colonial ideas and practices were reconstructed transculturally These identities were often merged and displayed in material culture Types of objects styles and iconography were often hybrids or new to the region as were the tomb assemblages in which they were deposited and found Patrons commissioned objects that marked a symbolic vision of place and person and that could mobilize support legitimize rule and bind people together Through close examination of key artifacts this book untangles the considerable changes in political structure and cultural makeup of ancient Chinese states and their northern neighbors
