Regional Economic

Development Robert J. Stimson, Roger R. Stough, Brian H. Roberts, 2013-03-09 Regional economic development has attracted the interest of economists geographers planners and regional scientists for a long time And of course it is a field that has developed a large practitioner cohort in government and business agencies from the national down to the state and local levels In planning for cities and regions both large and small economic development issues now tend to be integrated into strategic planning processes For at least the last 50 years scholars from various disciplines have theorised about the nature of regional economic development developing a range of models seeking to explain the process of regional economic development and why it is that regions vary so much in their economic structure and performance and how these aspects of a region can change dramatically over time Regional scientists in particular have developed a comprehensive tool kit of methodologies to measure and monitor regional economic characteristics such as industry sectors employment income value of production investment and the like using both quantitative and qualitative methods of analysis and focusing on both static and dynamic analysis The father of regional science Walter Isard was the first to put together a comprehensive volume on techniques of regional analysis Isard 1960 and since then a huge literature has emerged including the many titles in the series published by Springer in which this book is published

Governance in Northern Ontario: Economic Development and Policy Making Charles Conteh, Bob Segsworth, 2013-01-01 This book analyzes economic development policy governance in northern Ontario over the past thirty years with the goal of making practical policy recommendations for present and future government engagement with the region It brings together scholars from several disciplines to address the policy and management challenges in various sectors of northern Ontario s economy including the mining pulp and paper and tourism industries and both small and medium sized businesses Governance in Northern Ontario assesses the role of the provincial government and its economic policy intervention in the region s economic development The contributors evaluate the relationship between the provincial and local governments and the business sector and also looser structures of policy networks such as those of First Nations and other interested community groups Focusing on the nature of partnerships between governments and societal interests Governance in Northern Ontario makes a significant contribution to the theories and practice of public policy governance in socioeconomically disadvantaged regions
