ABSTRACT

HIV/AIDS has always been one of the most thoroughly global of diseases. The human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) is a lent virus that causes HIV infection and AIDS. AIDS is a condition in humans in which progressive failure of the immune system allows life-threatening infections and cancers to thrive. Infection with HIV occurs by the transfer of blood, semen, vaginal fluid, breast milk. Within these bodily fluids, HIV is present as both free virus particles and virus within infected immune cells. HIV infects vital cells in the human immune system such as helper CD4 T cells, macrophages. HIV infection leads to low levels of T cells through a number of mechanisms, including pyroptosis of infected T cells. The symptoms of AIDS are primarily the result of conditions that do not normally develop in individuals with healthy immune systems. Most of these conditions are opportunistic infections caused by bacteria, viruses, fungi and parasites that are normally controlled by the elements of the immune system that HIV damages. When condoms are used consistently by a couple in which one person is infected, the rate of HIV infection is less than 1% per year. There is some evidence to suggest that female condoms may provide an equivalent level of protection.

Introduction

HIV stands for human immunodeficiency virus. AIDS stands for acquired immuno deficiency syndrome.

HIV

H-It infects only human beings and also transmitted between humans not from animals. It is not transmitted from bites of mosquitoes, bats or any other species.
I-The body has immune system whose function is to protect our body from germs, infections etc. But a person suffering from HIV has inability to fight against diseases. However, immune system becomes deficient.
V-Virus is a small, simplest thing which is in inactive form outside the body and becomes active when it goes inside human body.

AIDS

A-It is not inherited means it cannot be transmit from one generation to another. It is transmitted to healthy person by infected person.
I-It weakens the immune system.
D-Creates a deficiency of CD4+ cells in the immune system.

S-It is a collection of diseases.

HIV is a virus that causes AIDS. Normally, our body has immune system that attack viruses and bacteria. Immune system has white blood cells which protect us from infections. White blood cells contain CD4+ cells which is also known as helper cells or T cells. A person who is infected will be able to develop. These infections take advantage of body's immune system. These infections cause several health problems and even lead to death of a person. HIV has inability to protect against diseases and count of CD4 cells also decreases in HIV. There is no cure of AIDS but there are certain medicines which are use to slow down the diseases so you stay healthier for long time. There is no medicine to get rid of diseases [1].
