American Cinematographers in the Great War, 1914-1918 James W. Castellan, Ron van Dopperen, Copper C. Graham, 2015-02-09 A history of American cameramen covering the news of World War I from the dangerous front line and the risk of execution to red tape and censorship At the start of hostilities in World War I when the United States was still neutral American newsreel companies and newspapers sent a new kind of journalist the film correspondent to Europe to record the Great War These pioneering cameramen accustomed to carrying the Kodaks and Graflexes of still photography had to lug cumbersome equipment into the trenches Facing dangerous conditions on the front

they also risked summary execution as supposed spies while navigating military red tape censorship and the business interests of the film and newspaper companies they represented Based on extensive research in European and American archives American Cinematographers in the Great War 1914-1918 follows the adventures of these cameramen as they managed to document and film the atrocities around them in spite of enormous difficulties The first book to explore the work and working conditions of American cinematographers active on the different fronts of the First World War It is a pioneering study which has already attracted a good deal of attention in the academic and archive world Historical Journal of Film Radio and Television *Catalogue of Title-entries of Books and Other Articles Entered in the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, Under the Copyright Law ...
