Military Planning in the Twentieth Century Mary Ann Robinson, 1984 The essays commentaries and speeches which form this volume were presented at the Eleventh Military History Symposium held at the United States Air Force Academy on 10 12 October 1984 This conference is a biennial event sponsored jointly by the Department of History and the Association of Graduates of the United States Air Force Academy Begun in 1967 the series seeks to address problems in military history which have received limited attention and to provide a forum in which scholars may present the results of their research In this manner we hope to stimulate and encourage interest in military history among civilian and military scholars members of the armed forces and the cadets of the United States Air Force Academy

The Politics of Ballistic Missile Nonproliferation W. Bowen, 2000-01-20 During the presidency of George Bush 1989 93 the proliferation of nuclear chemical and biological weapons and the ballistic missiles capable of delivering them rose greatly in significance as issues on the American security agenda In the missile field this became evident by the efforts of certain elements in the executive branch and several congressmen to improve domestic and international implementation of the Missile Technology Control Regime The Politics of Ballistic Missile Nonproliferation examines the political bureaucratic and systemic issues that interacted to determine the outcome of these efforts

Negotiation and Foreign Policy Decision Making Melania-Gabriela Ciot, 2014-06-02 Foreign policy decisions are influenced by many factors The real world is complex and many variables have to be considered when making a decision A psychological approach to decision making facilitates the understanding and explaining of the complexity of foreign and global policies precisely because of the prolonged transitional stage of the contemporary international system The course of world politics is shaped by the decisions of leaders Uncertainty involved in decision making in foreign policy can relate to the motivations beliefs intentions or calculations of the opponents If it is not possible to understand how decisions are made then maybe it is at least feasible to understand these decisions and perhaps more importantly predict various results with regards to international politics This book provides a new perspective on the study of international relations by analyzing the subjective elements idiosyncrasies that occur in decision making at the individual level The use of psychological methods of analysing the foreign policy decision making process proposes a necessary investigation path into international relations

Explaining Foreign Policy Steve A. Yetiv, 2004-03-22 Scholars of international relations tend to prefer one model or another in explaining the foreign policy behavior of governments Steve Yetiv however advocates an approach that applies five familiar models rational actor cognitive domestic politics groupthink and bureaucratic politics Drawing on the widest set of primary sources and interviews with key actors to date he applies each of these models to the 1990 91 Persian Gulf crisis and to the U S decision to go to war with Iraq in 2003 Probing the strengths and shortcomings of each model in explaining how and why the United States decided to proceed with the Persian Gulf War he shows that all models with the exception of the government politics model contribute in some way to our understanding of the event No one model provides the best explanation but when all five are used a fuller and more complete understanding emerges In the case of the Gulf War Yetiv demonstrates the limits of models that presume rational decision making as well as the crucial importance of using various perspectives Drawing partly on the Gulf War case he also develops innovative theories about when groupthink can actually produce a positive outcome and about the conditions under which government politics will likely be avoided He shows that the best explanations for government behavior ultimately integrate empirical insights yielded from both international and domestic theory which scholars have often seen as analytically separate With its use of the Persian Gulf crisis as a teachable case study and coverage of the more recent Iraq war Explaining Foreign Policy will be of interest to students and scholars of foreign policy international relations and related fields Military planning in the twentieth century , Defense Policy And The Presidency Sam C. Sarkesian,2019-04-11 This book examines the role of the president in the defense policy process focusing specifically on the administration of President Carter It provides an assessment of the impact of the president s policies on future U S defense posture Special Bibliography Series ,1957 Special Bibliography Series United States Air Force Academy.
