Native Speech:

Statistical Pronunciation Modeling for Non-Native Speech Processing Rainer E. Gruhn, Wolfgang Minker, Satoshi Nakamura, 2011-05-08 In this work the authors present a fully statistical approach to model non native speakers pronunciation Second language speakers pronounce words in multiple different ways compared to the native speakers Those deviations may it be phoneme substitutions deletions or insertions can be modelled automatically with the new method presented here The methods is based on a discrete hidden Markov model as a word pronunciation model initialized on a standard pronunciation dictionary The implementation and functionality of the methodology has been proven and verified with a test set of non native English in the regarding accent The book is written for researchers with a professional interest in phonetics and automatic speech and speaker recognition

Non-native Speech Ulrike Gut, 2009 Based on an innovative corpus based approach this book offers a comprehensive survey of the phonological and phonetic properties of L2 speech in English and German The first part of the book critically examines current theoretical models and research methodologies in the field of second language acquisition of phonology and describes the advances that have been made in corpus linguistics over the past few years in particular the development of phonological learner corpora It furthermore presents the first learner corpus of L2 English and L2 German that is fully aligned and has extensive phonological annotations the LeaP corpus The second part of the book describes the results of the quantitative and qualitative corpus analyses in the following areas of non native speech fluency final consonant cluster realisation vowel reduction and speech rhythm intonation and general foreign accent In addition the influence of many non linguistic factors including instruction and a stay abroad on the phonological properties of non native speech is explored

Advances in Speech Recognition Noam Shabtai, 2010-08-16 In the last decade further applications of speech processing were developed such as speaker recognition human machine interaction non English speech recognition and non native English speech recognition This book addresses a few of these applications Furthermore major challenges that were typically ignored in previous speech recognition research such as noise and reverberation appear repeatedly in recent papers I would like to sincerely thank the contributing authors for their effort to bring their insights and perspectives on current open questions in speech recognition research

Neural Mechanisms of Perceptual Categorization as Precursors to Speech Perception Einat Liebenthal,Lynne E. Bernstein,2017-05-03 Perceptual categorization is fundamental to the brain's remarkable ability to process large amounts of sensory information and efficiently recognize objects including speech Perceptual categorization is the neural bridge between lower level sensory and higher level language processing A long line of research on the physical properties of the speech signal as determined by the anatomy and physiology of the speech production apparatus has led to descriptions of the acoustic information that is used in speech recognition e.g. stop consonants place and manner of articulation voice onset time aspiration Recent research has also considered what visual cues are relevant to visual speech recognition i.e. the visual counter parts used in lipreading or audiovisual speech perception Much of the theoretical work on speech perception was done in the twentieth century without the benefit of neuroimaging technologies and models of neural representation. Recent progress in understanding the functional organization of sensory and association cortices based on advances in neuroimaging presents the possibility of achieving a comprehensive and far reaching account of perception in the service of language. At the level of cell assemblies, research in animals and humans suggests that neurons in the temporal cortex are important for encoding biological categories. On the cellular level, different classes of neurons, interneurons and pyramidal neurons have been suggested to play differential roles in the neural computations underlying auditory and visual categorization. The moment is ripe for a research topic focused on neural mechanisms mediating the emergence of speech representations including auditory, visual and even somatosensory based forms. Important progress can be achieved by juxtaposing within the same research topic the knowledge that currently exists, the identified lacunae and the theories that can support future investigations. This research topic provides a snapshot and platform for discussion of current understanding of neural mechanisms underlying the formation of perceptual categories and their relationship to language from a multidisciplinary and multisensory perspective. It includes contributions, reviews, original research, methodological developments pertaining to the neural substrates, dynamics and mechanisms underlying perceptual categorization and their interaction with neural processes governing speech perception.

Automated Speaking Assessment Klaus Zechner, Keelan Evanini, 2019-11-28. Automated Speaking Assessment Using Language Technologies to Score Spontaneous Speech provides a thorough overview of state of the art automated speech scoring technology as it is currently used at Educational Testing Service (ETS). Its main focus is related to the automated scoring of spontaneous speech elicited by TOEFL iBT Speaking section items, but other applications of speech scoring such as for more predictable spoken responses or responses provided in a dialogic setting are also discussed. The book begins with an in depth overview of the nascent field of automated speech scoring, its history, applications and challenges, followed by a discussion of psychometric considerations for automated speech scoring. The second and third parts discuss the integral main components of an automated speech scoring system as well as the different types of automatically generated measures extracted by the system, features related to evaluate the speaking construct of communicative competence as measured, defined by the TOEFL iBT Speaking assessment. Finally, the last part of the book touches on more recent developments such as providing more detailed feedback on test takers' spoken responses using speech features and scoring of dialogic speech. It concludes with a discussion, summary and outlook on future developments in this area. Written with minimal technical details for the benefit of non experts, this book is an ideal resource for graduate students in courses on Language Testing and Assessment as well as teachers and researchers in applied linguistics.
