

1 SCHOOLING EXTENDED

Participation in formal education continues to expand. International collaboration and technological advances support more individualised learning. The structures and processes of schooling remain.

2 EDUCATION OUTSOURCED

Traditional schooling systems break down as society becomes more directly involved in educating its citizens. Learning takes place through more diverse, privatised and flexible arrangements, with digital technology a key driver.

3 SCHOOLS AS LEARNING HUBS

Schools remain, but diversity and experimentation have become the norm. Opening the "school walls" connects schools to their communities, favouring ever-changing forms of learning, civic engagement and social innovation.

4 LEARN-AS-YOU-GO

Education takes place everywhere, anytime. Distinctions between formal and informal learning are no longer valid as society turns itself entirely to the power of the machine.
