Regulating Privacy Data Protection And Public Policy In Europe And The United States:

Regulating Privacy Colin J. Bennett, 1992 The information revolution has brought with it the technology for easily collecting personal information about individuals a facility that inherently threatens personal privacy Colin J Bennett here examines political responses to the data protection issue in four Western democracies comparing legislation that the United States Britain West Germany and Sweden forged from the late 1960 s to the 1980 s to protect citizens from unwanted computer dissemination of personal information Drawing on an extensive body of interviews and documentary evidence Bennett considers how the four countries each with different cultural traditions and institutions formulated fair information policy He finds that their computer regulatory laws are based on strikingly similar statutory principles but that enforcement of these principles varies considerably the United States relies on citizen initiative and judicial enforcement Britain uses a registration system Germany has installed an ombudsman and Sweden employs a licensing system Tracing the impact of key social political and technological factors on the ways different political systems have controlled the collection and communication of information Bennett also deepens our understanding of policymaking theory Regulating Privacy will be welcomed by political sciences especially those working in comparative public policy American politics organization theory and technology and politics political economists information systems analysts and others concerned with issues of privacy

Legislating Privacy Priscilla M. Regan, 2000-11-09 While technological threats to personal privacy have proliferated rapidly legislation designed to protect privacy has been slow and incremental In this study of legislative attempts to reconcile privacy and technology Priscilla Regan examines congressional policy making in three key areas computerized databases wiretapping and polygraph testing In each case she argues legislation has represented an unbalanced compromise benefiting those with a vested interest in new technology over those advocating privacy protection Legislating Privacy explores the dynamics of congressional policy formulation and traces the limited response of legislators to the concept of privacy as a fundamental individual right According to Regan we will need an expanded understanding of the social value of privacy if we are to achieve greater protection from emerging technologies such as Caller ID and genetic testing Specifically she argues that a recognition of the social importance of privacy will shift both the terms of the policy debate and the patterns of interest group action in future congressional activity on privacy issues
