Environmental Health Perspectives , 1993 Risk Regulation, Science, and Interests in Transatlantic Trade Conflicts D. Hornsby, 2013-10-16 When regions like Canada the US and the EU have disagreed over the legitimacy of risk perceptions they have placed science at the centre of international trade conflict By looking across cases disputed and informally resolved David Hornsby offers to deepen understanding of factors involved in risk based trade conflict Science and Politics Brent S. Steel, 2014-04-21 Recent partisan squabbles over science in the news are indicative of a larger tendency for scientific research and practice to get entangled in major ideological divisions in the public arena This politicization of science is deepened by the key role government funding plays in scientific research and development the market leading position of U S based science and technology firms and controversial U S exports such as genetically modified foods or hormone injected livestock This groundbreaking one volume A to Z reference features 120 150 entries that explore the nexus of politics and science both in the United States and in U S interactions with other nations The essays each by experts in their fields examine Health environmental and social cultural issues relating to science and politics Concerns relating to government regulation and its impact on the practice of science Key historical and contemporary events that have shaped our contemporary view of how science and politics intersect Science and Politics An A to Z Guide to Issues and Controversies is a must have resource for researchers and students who seek to deepen their understanding of the connection between

Scenarios for a Regulatory Future R. Bal, Willem Halffman, 2013-04-17 All industrial countries have developed regulatory systems to assess and manage the risk of chemical substances to the working and natural environment The pressure to harmonize these often specialized regulatory systems is increasingly strong at the international level Such harmonization not only entails the assessment of particular chemicals but also the way assessment procedures and their boundary with risk management is organized As these initiatives intensify they increasingly raise important questions of how to integrate national differences in the international regulatory arena How will national consultation procedures relate to international decision making on chemical risks How will differences in national risk assessment procedures be accommodated How will the international regulatory system be integrated with different national styles of regulation and government Presenting the experiences and insights of both people from within the worlds of risk assessment and management and from the field of Science Studies this book forms a state of the art in the discussion on the Politics of Chemical Risk By offering scenarios or sketches of a regulatory future it points to the choices that can be made and the opportunities to be explored As such it offers an agenda for environmental and occupational scientists policy makers and students of science and technology alike

Burke, 1993 Summarizes the presentations made at a conference on the subject of health safety and environmental risk Discusses such issues as the roles and limitations of science in understanding risk how federal agencies charged with safeguarding the public from risk decide which hazards to address whether traditional approaches to assessing risk are working to promote and enhance public safety the influence of politics economics and perceptions on risk policy how the public perceives risk and what role the media plays in creating those perceptions Science and Risk
