Apes and Monkeys on the Early Modern Stage, 1603-1659 Teresa Grant, 2024-07-06 This book is the first full length study of apes and monkeys on the early modern stage It broadens the scope of existing scholarship by situating the apes glimpsed in Shakespeare s plays in the wider context of the many uncelebrated uses by other playwrights c 1603 1659 The book investigates the theatrical appearances of real monkeys actors dressed up as apes and characters mistaken for them arguing that the ape trope is so insistent in early modern drama that it becomes a structural metaphor It addresses both plays and masques across the period arguing that the ways of seeing in these different kinds of theatre make apes mean differently in their generic contexts Grounded in historicist readings this book also draws significantly on the field of ritual studies and the new intersectional discipline of animal performance studies

Medieval Pets Kathleen Walker-Meikle, 2012 Animals in the middle ages have often been discussed but usually only as a source of food as beasts of burden or as aids for hunters This book takes a completely different angle showing that they were also beloved domestic companions to their human owners It offers a full survey of pets and pet keeping how they were acquired kept fed exercised and displayed it looks at the problems pets could cause and finally how they were mourned It also examines the representation of pets and their owners in art and literature the many charming illustrations offer further evidence for the bonds between humans and their pets then as now Dr Kathleen Walker Meikle is a Wellcome Trust Fellow at the University of York working on animals and medieval medicine

The Great Cat & Dog Massacre Hilda Kean, 2022-12-22 The tragedies of World War II are well known But at least one has been forgotten in September 1939 four hundred thousand cats and dogs were massacred in Britain The government vets and animal charities all advised against this killing So why would thousands of British citizens line up to voluntarily euthanize household pets In The Great Cat and Dog Massacre Hilda Kean unearths the history piecing together the compelling story of the life and death of Britain s wartime animal companions She explains that fear of imminent Nazi bombing and the desire to do something to prepare for war led Britons to sew blackout curtains dig up flower beds for vegetable patches send their children away to the countryside and kill the family pet in theory sparing them the suffering of a bombing raid Kean s narrative is gripping unfolding through stories of shared experiences of bombing food restrictions sheltering and mutual support Soon pets became key to the war effort providing emotional assistance and helping people to survive a contribution for which the animals gained government recognition Drawing extensively on new research from animal charities state archives diaries and family stories Kean does more than tell a virtually forgotten story She complicates our understanding of World War II as a good war fought by a nation of good people Accessibly written and generously illustrated Kean s account of this forgotten aspect of British history moves animals to center stage forcing us to rethink our assumptions about ourselves and the animals with whom we share our homes
