Making Up Our Mind Sigal R. Ben-Porath,Michael C. Johanek,2019-04-24 If free market advocates had total control over education policy would the shared public system of education collapse Would school choice revitalize schooling with its innovative force With proliferating charters and voucher schemes would the United States finally make a dramatic break with its past and expand parental choice Those are not only the wrong questions they re the wrong premises argue philosopher Sigal R Ben Porath and historian Michael C Johanek in Making Up Our Mind Market driven school choices aren t new They predate the republic and for generations parents have chosen to educate their children through an evolving mix of publicly supported private charitable and entrepreneurial enterprises The question is not whether to have school choice It is how we will regulate who has which choices in our mixed market for schooling and what we as a nation hope to accomplish with that mix of choices Looking beyond the simplistic divide between those who oppose government intervention and those who support public education the authors make the case for a structured landscape of choice in schooling one that protects the interests of children and of society while also identifying key shared values on which a broadly acceptable policy could rest Psychology of Education: Schools, teachers and parents Peter K. Smith,Anthony D. Pellegrini,2000      Report Cards Wade H. Morris,2023-09-26 The definitive history of the report card Report cards represent more than just an account of academic standing and attendance The report card also serves as a tool of control and as a microcosm for the shifting power dynamics among teachers parents school administrators and students In Report Cards A Cultural History Wade H Morris tells the story of American education by examining the history of this unique element of student life In the nearly two hundred year evolution of the report card this relic of academic bookkeeping reflected broader trends in the United States the republican zealotry and religious fervor of the antebellum period the failed promises of postwar Reconstruction for the formerly enslaved the changing gender roles in newly urbanized cities the overreach of the Progressive child saving movement in the early twentieth century and by the 1930s the increasing faith in an academic meritocracy The use of report cards expanded with the growth of school bureaucracies becoming a tool through which administrators could surveil both student activity and teachers And by the late twentieth century even the most radical critics of numerical reporting of children have had to compromise their ideals Morris traces the evolution of how teachers students parents and administrators have historically responded to report cards From a western New York classroom teacher in the 1830s and a Georgia student in the 1870s who was born enslaved to a Colorado student incarcerated in the early 1900s and the son of Russian Jewish immigrants applying to college in the 1930s Report Cards describes how generations of people have struggled to maintain dignity within a system that reduces children to numbers on slips of paper
