determined to make art her career rather than just a social skill She was disappointed at her art education in the United States and moved to Paris to study art under private tutors in Paris Her mother and family friends traveled with her to France acting as chaperones In Europe Cassatt's paintings were better received increasing her prospects and exhibited in the Salon of 1872 selling a painting She exhibited every year at the Paris Salon until 1877 when all her works were rejected Distraught at her rejection she turned to the Impressionists who welcomed her with welcome arms Deciding early in her career that marriage was not an option Cassatt never married and spent much of her time with her sister Lydia until her death in 1882 which left Mary unable to work for a short time As her career progressed her critical reputation grew and she was often touted along with Degas as the one of the best exhibitors at the Impressionist Salon She was awarded the French Legion of Honor in 1906
