Peer Supervision Fastback:

Peer Supervision Daniel A. Heller, 1989 This monograph describes peer supervision as a helping relationship rather than an evaluative one The need for peer supervision is discussed and how to start such a program is described Some practical issues are considered Suggestions are made on funding and institutionalizing a peer supervision program Eight brief case histories of peer supervision in action illustrate the effectiveness of this program JD Fastback, 1978 Resources in Education, 1999-04

Differentiated Career Opportunities for Teachers Ronald M. Jandura, Peter Burke, 1989 This document describes a program in District 742 Community Schools in St Cloud Minnesota called Differentiated Career Opportunities for Teachers This multifaceted program empowers selected teachers with the authority to make decisions and plan programs for their district and individual schools and at the same time to renew their professional lives Through a system of 3 year temporary assignments with additional compensation and protection of their seniority classroom teachers take on a variety of leadership roles The program has been in operation since 1984 and appears to be working well JD

Developing an Effective Teacher Mentor Program Melvin P. Heller, Nancy W. Sindelar, 1991 School districts considering a mentoring program need to consider four things 1 the reasons for a teacher mentor program 2 how to start such a program 3 administrative support needed for a successful program and 4 pitfalls to avoid The reasons for having a mentor program are that it benefits the new teacher the mentor and the school The new teacher s opportunities to exchange views with an experienced teacher is a distinct benefit to him her The mentor benefits also however because of the opportunity to share views experiences and strategies The improved teaching that usually results is an asset to the school Starting a program involves six stages establishing a rationale setting criteria for the selection of mentors defining roles inviting the mentors training the mentors and evaluating the program To be successful the program must have administrative support from the board of education the superintendent the central office staff the teacher union and the principal As with any new program anticipating problems can help to avoid them Some pitfalls are overdependence on the part of the protege ego problems on the part of the mentor and the evaluation dilemma arising from the mentor s dual role of confidant and evaluator Mentorship programs promote professionalism by providing continuous staff development during the first year of teaching AMH

Raising Career Aspirations of Hispanic Girls Josefina Villamil Tinajero, María Luisa González, Florence Dick, 1991 This pamphlet examines the conditions that put female Hispanic Americans at risk of not completing their education and not aspiring to careers and describes a program that takes advantage of the important role played by the mother in Hispanic culture The following factors make female Hispanic Americans the most at risk of all students 1 low grades and disciplinary problems 2 lack of role models 3 disproportionate levels of referrals to special education classes 4 low teacher expectations 5 lack of adequate vocational and career counseling 6 stereotypical portrayals in the curriculum 7 weak educational support at home and 8 mothers with low educational attainment and low educational expectations for their daughters The Mother Daughter Program is a collaborative program involving the University of Texas the YWCA and three El Paso Texas school districts The program targets Hispanic American female students in grade 6 and their mothers from low income families in which no member has graduated from college Mothers are a central focus of the program because their expectations involvement and role modeling have a lasting impact on their daughters educational development Participants engage in a variety of activities on local college campuses and in community service programs Hispanic American college women who serve as role models are a vital component of the program Mothers and daughters participating in the program report increased career awareness self confidence and educational aspirations A list of 20 references is appended FMW

Community Colleges in the 1990s Glen Gabert,1991 Designed to provide an overview of the dramatic changes affecting community college education this booklet presents a history of the movement which established community colleges examines issues of particular importance in the 1990 s and offers predictions concerning community colleges in the 21st century Following an introduction and brief history the booklet profiles today s community colleges reviewing the mission of two year institutions and describing the characteristics which distinguish them from four year schools Then student enrollments for the 1990 s are discussed in terms of the factors contributing to projected enrollment increases This section provides vignettes profiling 13 hypothetical students and the circumstances surrounding their enrollment and highlights the demographic characteristics of the community college students of 1990 The next three sections look at curriculum and instruction staffing and finance respectively each concluding with a series of relevant questions currently facing community colleges The final section provides a series of predictions concerning the status of community colleges in the year 2000 foretelling that the student body will include more minorities and persons over the age of 55 that the majority of faculty will have been hired in the 1990 s subsequent to massive retirements and that the academic agendas of fewer community colleges will be dictated by four year institutions PAA

Strategies for Involving Parents in Their Children's Education Linda T. Jones,1991 This publication presents an overview of programs and practices that schools can use for involving parents in the education of their children at home and in school The first chapter describes programs that demonstrate the ways in which parents can be involved in the education of their children of 1 to 5 years of age A list of 10 approaches for involving parents in their children s early education is included The second chapter discusses the topics of 1 improving communication between home and school 2 helping parents work with their children at home 3 involving parents in school activities 4 developing collaborative planning among parents students and teachers and 5 empowering parents to become decisionmakers in their children s schools The third chapter provides brief descriptions of parent workshops and activities that schools might want to offer or sponsor Some are for parents only others are for parents and children The fourth chapter describes types of school parent collaboration that can improve children s behavior attitudes and study habits The concluding chapter offers guidelines for planning a successful parent involvement program Contains 37 references RH

Assisting and Assessing Educational Personnel Sandra J. Tracy, Robert H. MacNaughton, 1993 Street Gangs and the Schools Kevin W. Riley, 1991 Schools cannot approach the problem of street gangs with the same strategies as law enforcement agencies but rather must create a nurturing environment for all students where success in school and life becomes the only attractive option for gang members Street gangs represent the racial cultural and economic diversity of American society Gangs are similar to other organizations in that they have a name claim territory have a continuous membership and distinguish themselves from other groups However to qualify as a gang the organization must be involved in criminal activity Gang involvement can range from simple admiration or identification with someone who is in a gang to classification by a law enforcement agency as a documented full participant The following factors contribute to gang involvement 1 power 2 pride 3 prestige 4 peer pressure 5 adventure 6 self preservation 7 money and 8 limited life options Schools must avoid the unproductive approach of attempting to identify and discipline gang members based on stereotyped behaviors A positive educational approach to preventing gang involvement should include the following components 1 staff development 2 values education 3 school climate 4 cultural inclusion and 5 community involvement A list of 24 references is appended FMW Middle School Teaching Richard Dean Kellough, Noreen G. Resources in Education, 1997 Restructuring Education Through Technology Theodore Wayne Frick, 1991 This paper examines the role of technology in restructuring education by analyzing how it influences seven important relationships in the educative process 1 teacher student relationships 2 student content relationships 3 teacher content relationships 4 student context relationships 5 teacher context relationships 6 content context relationships and 7 educational system environment relationships After a brief historical overview of the uses of technology in education the paper discusses the nature of systems in education and examines the process of restructuring through systems change in the seven pairs of relationships as they exist today and as they might change in a restructured educational system How educational technology can empower teachers and students is then discussed with emphasis on how electronic technology is transforming the way information is communicated and processed A brief discussion of the role of the teacher in evaluating the worth of content i e selecting the best of culture for sharing with students concludes the report ALF The Portfolio Approach to Assessment Emily Grady, 1992 The shortcomings of standardized testing as the predominant form of student assessment in the United States are reviewed and the use and potential benefits of portfolio assessment are explored Children's educational experiences and their future job prospects and standards of living are being decided by test scores Moreover these test scores may be unfair or biased against some students Instead of more tests we need a new attitude toward assessment one that encourages a variety of assessments Portfolio assessment through collections of student works can be an encompassing format for this new philosophy Before considering what a portfolio should contain it is important to establish the purpose of the assessment The experiences of Vermont illustrate the development of a portfolio assessment with consistent standards Examples of guidelines for mathematics and language arts portfolios make it clear that it is possible to establish consistent practices It is also necessary to reflect on the portfolio occasionally using self evaluations and direct questions or profiles Educators also find portfolios useful tools for preservice teachers Portfolio assessment can be the framework for a new curricular structure that integrates assessment into the learning loop SLD The Case for School-based Health Clinics Dean F. Miller,1990 Learning Strategies for Problem Learners Thomas P.

Lombardi,1992 This pamphlet offers guidelines for educators who want to improve their use of strategy instruction with students who have inefficient and or ineffective learning strategies Specific examples of strategic teaching are provided for improving general and academic performance and suggestions are given on how to create a strategic environment consistent with strategic teaching The pamphlet begins with an outline of the steps in acquiring a learning strategy It then discusses strategies for improving general performance including strategies in the areas of organization time management memory test taking social skills speech and handwriting Strategies for improving academic performance in the areas of reading and writing spelling mathematics and other content areas are then described Suggestions for creating a supportive environment for strategy learning in the home and school are provided Guidelines for teaching strategically are noted such as use of advanced organizers brainstorming motivating and activating students modeling providing feedback and use of post organizers Contains 55 references JDD Asking the Right Question Selma Wassermann,1992 Understanding the potential power of questions to promote thoughtful examination is at the heart of classroom teaching If classroom discussions are to bear fruit with students examining issues intelligently teachers must develop an awareness of and be sensitive to how questions are framed Good questions follow an interactive rhythm that produces reflection rather than interrogation building trust in the interactive relationship This booklet is organized into four parts and addresses the following topics 1 several categories of unproductive questions that do little or nothing to promote meaningful examination of ideas 2 questions that may call for students to examine ideas but the framing of which defeats more productive examination 3 effective questioning which helps students to think more intelligently about important issues under study and 4 guidelines for a well orchestrated discussion In conclusion it is suggested that the art of questioning is learned more through experience than in any preparatory program An analysis of individual questioning styles and a tally sheet for self examination of questioning are appended LL English as a Second Language Donovan R.
